Nelson, 1999-04-01 Many Guatemalans speak of Mayan indigenous organizing as a finger in the wound Diane Nelson explores the implications of this painfully graphic metaphor in her far reaching study of the civil war and its aftermath Why use a body metaphor What body is wounded and how does it react to apparent further torture If this is the condition of the body politic how do human bodies relate to it those literally wounded in thirty five years of war and those locked in the equivocal embrace of sexual conquest domestic labor mestizaje and social change movements Supported by three and a half years of fieldwork since 1985 Nelson addresses these questions along with the jokes ambivalences and structures of desire that surround them in both concrete and theoretical terms She explores the relations among Mayan cultural rights activists ladino nonindigenous Guatemalans the state as a site of struggle and transnational forces including Nobel Peace Prizes UN Conventions neo liberal economics global TV and gringo anthropologists Along with indigenous claims and their effect on current attempts at reconstituting civilian authority after decades of military rule Nelson investigates the notion of Quincentennial Guatemala which has given focus to the overarching question of Mayan and Guatemalan identity Her work draws from political economy cultural studies and psychoanalysis and has special relevance to ongoing discussions of power hegemony and the production of subject positions as well as gender issues and histories of violence as they relate to postcolonial nation state formation Science Fiction TV James Van Hise,1993 Science Fiction Television M.
