

need to develop my competitiveness from working hard, volunteering, and interning. Success in life is not just about what I can learn from books and theories taught in schools. Rather, success is also measured by what I can contribute to the society in general regardless of how much money I make. I need to push myself to the limits and rise to every challenging situation and conquer it. To pursue an education and career in math and computer science will not be a smooth road. But as I am now more open to the value of hard work because of what I witnessed and heard from my Vietnamese friends, I know that I will be able to attain success in everything I set my mind to. I believe that notwithstanding what the university's ranking is or tuition fees, the more important consideration is the kind of community and environment that will surround the student in those years.

Your university's commitment to an inclusive community wherein diversity is embraced and celebrated appeals greatly to me. I believe that to be exposed to a diverse community will make me appreciate my own and other people's culture. Such will give me the opportunity to share my learning experiences and learn from other people's experiences and beliefs. Given the chance to transfer to your university, I will work hard and contribute to the school's commitment to excellence and inclusion. I want to work hard for my dreams, and I need the best university partner to help me achieve these.

From Catalonia to the Caribbean: The Sephardic Orbit from Medieval to Modern Times Federica Francesconi, Stanley Mirvis, Brian Smollett, 2018-08-20 From Catalonia to the Caribbean The Sephardic Orbit from Medieval to Modern Times is a polyphonic collection of essays in honor of Jane S Gerber s contributions as a leading scholar and teacher Each chapter presents new or underappreciated source materials or questions familiar historical models to expand our understanding of Sephardic cultural intellectual and social history The subjects of this volume are men and women rich and poor connected to various Sephardic Diasporas Spanish Portuguese North African or Middle Eastern from medieval to modern times They each in their own way challenged the expectations of their societies and helped to define the religious ethnic and intellectual experience of Sephardim as well as surrounding cultures throughout the world

Our Fate John Martin Fischer, 2016-01-04 Our Fate is a collection of John Martin Fischer s previously published articles on the relationship between God s foreknowledge and human freedom The book contains a new introductory essay that places all of the chapters in the book into a cohesive framework The introductory essay also provides some new views about the issues treated in the book including a bold and original account of God s foreknowledge of free actions in a causally indeterministic world The focus of the book is a powerful traditional argument for the incompatibility of God s foreknowledge and human freedom to do otherwise Fischer presents this argument in various forms and defends it against some of the most salient criticisms especially Ockhamism The incompatibilist's argument is driven by the fixity of the past and in particular the fixity of God's prior beliefs about our current behavior The author gives special attention to Ockhamism which contends that God's prior beliefs are not over and done with in the past and are thus not subject to the intuitive idea of the fixity of the past In the end Fischer defends the argument for the incompatibility of God's foreknowledge and human freedom to do otherwise but he further argues that this incompatibility need not entail the incompatibility of God's foreknowledge and human moral responsibility Thus through this collection of essays Fischer develops a semicompatibilist view the belief that God's foreknowledge is entirely compatible with human moral responsibility even if God's foreknowledge rules out freedom to do otherwise
