

Section 5-9 Transforming Polynomial Functions

Objectives

Students will be able to:

Transform polynomial graphs

Essential Understanding: The graph of a function $af(x-h) + k$ is a vertical stretch or compression by the factor $|a|$, a horizontal shift of h units and a vertical shift of k units of the graph $y = f(x)$

Lesson

Transforming $y = x^3$

What is the equation of the graph of $y = x^3$ under a vertical compression by a factor of $\frac{1}{4}$, followed by a reflection across the x -axis, a horizontal translation of 2 to the right and a vertical translation of 5 units up?

How many real zeros will the function $y = -a(x-h)^3 + k$ have, solve for x . (1 real zero)

What are all the real zeros of $y = 3(x-1)^3 + 6$

You cannot obtain a cubic function in standard form by transforming the parent function using stretches, reflections, and translations.

Constructing a Quartic Function with Two Real Zeros

What is the quartic function with only two real zeros, $x = 4$, $x = 8$?

Method 1

Start by graphing the parent. What is the difference between the two zeros? How far do you need to translate the graph down for it to be 4 units apart? Now where are the zeros at? How far do you need to move the graph left or right to the zeros will be at 4 and 8?

Method 2

$$(x-4)(x-8)(x+1)^2$$

Multiply by a quadratic with no real zeros to find another function

Power Function

$Y = ax^b$ in this form, y varies directly with x (is proportional with x) and a is the constant of proportionality.
