Air Crash Investigations: Running Out of Fuel, How Air Transat 236 Managed to Fly 100 Miles Without Fuel and Land Safely George Cramoisi,2010-02-04 On August 24 2001 Air Transat Flight 236 an Airbus 330 was on its way from Toronto Canada to Lisbon Portugal with 306 people on board Above the Atlantic Ocean the crew noticed a dangerous fuel imbalance The crew changed the planned route for a landing at the Lajes Airport in the Azores At 06 13 the right engine flamed out At 06 26 the left engine also flamed out However after flying 100 miles without fuel the crew managed to land the aircraft at the Lajes Airport at 06 45 After the landing small fires started in the main gear wheels they were extinguished by the crash rescue response vehicles Only 16 passengers and 2 cabin crew members received injuries The aircraft suffered damage to the fuselage and to the main landing gear The investigation uncovered a large crack in the fuel line of the right engine it was caused by mistakes during an engine change just before the start of the flight Flight Instructor Rating for Dummies

Congress. House. Committee on Appropriations. Subcommittee on Department of Transportation and Related Agencies Appropriations, 1985 Private Pilot Judgment Training in Flight School Settings Alan E. Diehl, 1987 Pilot judgment errors have long been recognized as an important factor in aviation accidents Previous studies have demonstrated that specialized training procedures can significantly reduce the number of decisional errors made by newly certified private pilots during in flight tests However the subjects in these studies were all college age students enrolled in full time aviation training programs which were taught by highly motivated instructors The present study examined the utility of revised judgment training materials with typical private pilot applicants in conventional flight school settings at ten fixed based operations within the FAA's eastern region The performance of a sample of subjects who received judgment training was compared with that of a control group drawn from these same FBOs The behavioral test of judgment was in the form of an observation flight administered by observers who were uninformed of the details of the experimental design Students and instructors also completed a critique of the program materials The results of the study suggest that improvements in pilot decision making skills can be achieved in the less formal instructional climate which characterizes many conventional flight school programs The revised judgment training program and instructional materials are acceptable to the user community and most participants found them to be very useful Pilot License for Future Pilots Dr. Anna Serbinenko, Welcome to Aviation We are pleased that you have chosen Canadian Flight Centre as a guide for your training towards your Pilot License Over the years we have developed a program which is both structured and systematic in order to provide you with the highest level of training This book is your guide in the cockpit Put it in your kneeboard take notes in it make it your flying companion
