December 4, 2003

Ms. Mary E. Peters
Administrator
Federal Highway Administration
Room 4218
400 7th Street, SW
Washington, D.C. 20590

Dear Administrator Peters:

The Research and Technology Coordinating Committee (FHWA) met on November 10-11, 2003, at the Keck Center of the National Academies. The enclosed meeting roster indicates the members, liaisons, guests, and TRB staff in attendance. On behalf of the committee, I thank FHWA for its continuing interest in the work of RTCC. I also thank and commend the FHWA staff for their participation in the meeting. In particular, the committee appreciated the participation of Rick Capka, FHWA's Deputy Administrator, and the presentations made by Dennis Judycki, Jeffrey Paniati, Marci Kenney, and Peter Markle.

This letter is an intentionally brief summary of the meeting; information about the committee's future activities and meetings is also provided. The report is organized under five main topics. The first topic is local/regional stakeholder involvement in highway R&T programs, a current committee initiative that addresses an issue of interest both to FHWA and the committee. The following four topics are then described: the Department of Transportation's intelligent transportation systems program; the research activities of the Office of Operations; the status of implementation efforts for the agency's corporate master plan for highway R&T; and plans for an assessment of the asphalt pavement laboratories at FHWA's Turner-Fairbank Highway Research Center.

Local/Regional Stakeholder Involvement in Highway R&T

The meeting opened with a staff presentation on local and regional stakeholder involvement in highway research programs. The presentation provided background for a discussion in open session with representatives from several associations directly involved with local and regional transportation agencies and their staffs. The participants included the following: Phil Caruso, Institute of Transportation Engineers; Tony Giancola, National Association of County Engineers; Carol Estes, American Public
