Alphabetical Catalogue of the Library of Congress Library of Congress,1880 Catalogue of Books Added to the Library of Congress, 1861 The Commerce of Vision Peter John Brownlee,2018-08-14 When Ralph Waldo Emerson wrote in 1837 that Our Age is Ocular he offered a succinct assessment of antebellum America s cultural commercial and physiological preoccupation with sight In the early nineteenth century the American city s visual culture was manifest in pamphlets newspapers painting exhibitions and spectacular entertainments businesses promoted their wares to consumers on the move with broadsides posters and signboards and advances in ophthalmological sciences linked the mechanics of vision to the physiological functions of the human body Within this crowded visual field sight circulated as a metaphor as a physiological process and as a commercial commodity Out of the intersection of these various discourses and practices emerged an entirely new understanding of vision The Commerce of Vision integrates cultural history art history and material culture studies to explore how vision was understood and experienced in the first half of the nineteenth century Peter John Brownlee examines a wide selection of objects and practices that demonstrate the contemporary preoccupation with ocular culture and accurate vision from the birth of ophthalmic surgery to the business of opticians from the typography used by urban sign painters and job printers to the explosion of daguerreotypes and other visual forms and from the novels of Edgar Allan Poe and Herman Melville to the genre paintings of Richard Caton Woodville and Francis Edmonds In response to this expanding visual culture antebellum Americans cultivated new perceptual practices habits and aptitudes At the same time however new visual experiences became quickly integrated with the machinery of commodity production and highlighted the physical shortcomings of sight as well as nascent ethical shortcomings of a surface based culture Through its theoretically acute and extensively researched analysis The Commerce of Vision synthesizes the broad culturing of vision in antebellum America
