mobility and communication is intricate and this volume uncovers the deep rooted significance of tourism and media From antiquity to modern day Western communication systems have artfully crafted the allure of destinations making places irresistible to the travellers At its core this book proposes that the impetus for travel is a primal human necessity rooted in our inherent need for movement consciousness expansion and cultural development Featuring Greek civilization as a case study the book reveals how the rich cultural capital of modern Greece long admired and assimilated by many global cultures has immensely contributed to Greece's contemporary tourism imaginary. Readers are challenged to look beyond prevailing practices where tourism management and marketing are the driving force for commercial exchange but to encompass its broader essence as a vital human function leading to richer experiences. It will be of interest to academics within areas related to tourism studies, mobility studies, mass media communication and cultural studies.

The Structure of Multimodal Documents Tuomo Hiippala, 2015-06-05. This book develops a new framework for describing the structure of multimodal documents: how language, image, layout and other modes of communication work together to convey meaning. Building on recent research in multimodal analysis, functional linguistics and information design, the book examines the textual, visual and spatial aspects of page-based multimodal documents and employs an analytical model to describe and interpret their structure using the concepts of semiotic modes, medium and genre. To demonstrate and test this approach, the study performs a systematic longitudinal analysis of a corpus of multimodal documents within a single genre: an extensively annotated corpus of tourist brochures produced between 1967-2008. The book provides multimodal discourse analysts with methodological tools to draw empirically based conclusions about multimodal documents and will be a valuable resource for researchers planning to develop and study multimodal corpora.
