The First Line of Defense United States. Congress. Senate. Committee on the Judiciary. Subcommittee on Crime and Drugs,2010 How It Works Robert P. Fairbanks,2009-09-15 Of the some sixty thousand vacant properties in Philadelphia half of them are abandoned row houses Taken as a whole these derelict homes symbolize the city s plight in the wake of industrial decline But a closer look reveals a remarkable new phenomenon street level entrepreneurs repurposing hundreds of these empty houses as facilities for recovering addicts and alcoholics How It Works is a compelling study of this recovery house movement and its place in the new urban order wrought by welfare reform To find out what life is like in these recovery houses Robert P Fairbanks II goes inside one particular home in the Kensington neighborhood Operating without a license and unregulated by any government office the recovery house provides food shelter company and a bracing self help philosophy to addicts in an area saturated with drugs and devastated by poverty From this starkly vivid close up Fairbanks widens his lens to reveal the intricate relationships the recovery houses have forged with public welfare the formal drug treatment sector criminal justice institutions and the local government Treating Child-Abusive Families Jeffrey A. Kelly,2013-11-21 During the past ten years the problem of child abuse has been the subject of increased attention both in the professional community and among the general public The reasons for this widespread recognition are clear First professionals of many disciplines deal with child abusive families and do so in a variety of ways Physicians hospital staff and teachers are often the first to assess a child as the victim of abuse social workers and child protective personnel investigate cases of suspected abuse court and legal authorities make determinations concerning the needs of an abused child and mental health professionals including psychologists social workers and family counselors often have responsibility for treating abusive families Few clinical problems have received this kind of widespread interdisciplinary recognition and given the nature and seriousness of child abusive behavior few problems receive such intensive attention within each profession's literature A second factor responsible for increased study of child abuse is the fact that violence directed toward children is probably the most extreme form of family dysfunction seen by counselors therapists and other practitioners While other types of child management and anger control problems occur far more frequently the consequences of child abusive behavior are much more serious than the consequences of other problems seen in child or family clinics It has been estimated that as many as 550 000 children are the targets of parental abuse in the country each year Helfer Kemper 1976
