The future of the huge Rockbridge landmark is uncertain — will there be logging or pure preservation?

LEXINGTON — Twenty-five years ago, thousands of people pitched their dollars together and bought a primitive mountain in Rockbridge County for $325,000. Not just any mountain, but an iconic double-peak formation that lends its residents of Rockbridge County the same sense of place and direction that Roanoke's does in their relationship with Mill Mountain and its star.

"One can hardly be anywhere in Rockbridge County and not see House Mountain. Some of our most prized views are of House Mountain," said Barbara Walsh, executive director of the Rockbridge Area Conservation Council. "If you go into any art gallery unadorned home, you'll find paintings, stained glass and jewelry. It is a sacred place, a very special place and emblematic of who we are and what we are."

Unlike Mill Mountain, House Mountain stands as a remnant of a bygone era, as it did in 1989 when members of the

VA falls short on care for women

An Associated Press review found that female veterans were placed on a wait list at a higher rate than male vets.

By Garance Burke
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO — Already pilloried for long wait times for medical appointments, the Department of Veterans Affairs is falling short of another commitment: to attend to the needs of the rising ranks of female veterans returning from Iraq and Afghanistan, many of them of child-bearing age.

From the head of the VA's office of women's health, officials acknowledge that persistent shortcomings remain in caring for the 100,000 female veterans who last year at its hospitals and clinics — despite an investment of more than $1.2 billion since 2008 in expanding the training of hundreds of medical professionals in the specialties of treating the female body.

According to an Associated Press review of VA electronic documents, inspector general reports and interviews:

- Nationwide, nearly one in four VA hospitals does not have a full-time gynecologist on staff. And about 840 of the 900 community-based clinics serving veterans in rural areas do not have a designated women's health provider, despite the goal that every clinic would have one.

- When community-based clinics refer veterans to a nearby university or other private medical facility to be screened for breast cancer, more than half the time their mammogram results are not provided to patients within two weeks, as required under VA policy.

- Female veterans have been placed on the VA's Electronic Wait List at a higher rate than male veterans. All new patients who cannot be scheduled for an appointment are placed on the wait list.

- And according to a VA presentation last year, female veterans of child-bearing age were far more likely to request medications that can cause birth defects than were women being treated for other conditions.

"Are there problems? Yes,"

'Flawed system' fuels rise in child immigration

An investigation found that many children who flee to the U.S. are staying in the country for years with few to no consequences.

By Alicia A. Caldwell
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Thousands of immigrant children fleeing poverty and violence in Central America cross alone into the United States each day in American cities, attend public schools and possibly work. Some live years without citizenship.

The chief reasons are an overburdened, deeply flawed system of immigration courts and a 2002 law intended to protect children's welfare, an Associated Press investigation finds.

Driving the dramatic increases in these immigrants is the recognition throughout Honduras, Guatemala and El Salvador that children who make their dangerous trip can effectively remain in the U.S. for years

See IMMIGRATION, 6

Young detainees sleep in a cell at a customs facility in Toluca. Immigrant children often spend a month in custody before reuniting with their parents.

The Campaign for Women Suffrage in Virginia Brent Tarter, Marianne E. Julienne, Barbara C. Batson, 2011-06-21

In 1920 Virginia's General Assembly refused to ratify the Nineteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution to grant women the vote. Virginia's suffragists lost. Or did they? When the thirty-sixth state ratified the amendment, women gained voting rights across the nation. Virginia suffragists were a part of that victory, although their role has been nearly forgotten. They marched in parades, rallied at the state capitol, spoke to crowds on street corners, staffed booths at fairs, lobbied legislators, picketed the White House, and even went to jail. The Campaign for Woman Suffrage in Virginia reveals how women created two statewide organizations to win the right to vote. At the centenary of the movement, these remarkable women can at last be recognized for their important contributions.
