Finding Communities in Social Networks Using Graph Embeddings Mosab Alfaqeeh, David B. Skillicorn, 2024-06-29 Community detection in social networks is an important but challenging problem This book develops a new technique for finding communities that uses both structural similarity and attribute similarity simultaneously weighting them in a principled way The results outperform existing techniques across a wide range of measures and so advance the state of the art in community detection Many existing community detection techniques base similarity on either the structural connections among social network users or on the overlap among the attributes of each user Either way loses useful information There have been some attempts to use both structure and attribute similarity but success has been limited We first build a large real world dataset by crawling Instagram producing a large set of user profiles We then compute the similarity between pairs of users based on four qualitatively different profile properties similarity of language used in posts similarity of hashtags used which requires extraction of content from them similarity of images displayed which requires extraction of what each image is about and the explicit connections when one user follows another These single modality similarities are converted into graphs These graphs have a common node set the users but different sets a weighted edges These graphs are then connected into a single larger graph by connecting the multiple nodes representing the same user by a clique with edge weights derived from a lazy random walk view of the single graphs This larger graph can then be embedded in a geometry using spectral techniques In the embedding distance corresponds to dissimilarity so geometric clustering techniques can be used to find communities The resulting communities are evaluated using the entire range of current techniques outperforming all of them Topic modelling is also applied to clusters to show that they genuinely represent users with similar interests This can form the basis for applications such as online marketing or key influence selection

Strategic Marketing for Social Enterprises in Developing Nations Chiweshe, Nigel, Ellis, Debbie, 2019-06-29 Many governments in developing nations are finding it nearly impossible to address challenges posed to their countries including poverty disease and high levels of youth unemployment Thus social entrepreneurs are attempting to address these social challenges through the creation of social enterprises However further research is needed as to what social entrepreneurship is and how these enterprises can utilize and formulate marketing strategies Strategic Marketing for Social Enterprises in Developing Nations provides innovative insights for an in depth understanding of where marketing and social entrepreneurship interact providing clarity as to what social entrepreneurship is as an organizational offering what drives social entrepreneurship and the formulation of marketing strategies for social enterprises Highlighting topics such as income generating marketing management and media dependency theory it is designed for managers entrepreneurial advisors entrepreneurs industry professionals practitioners researchers academicians and students

Social Geographies of Educational Change F. Hernandez, I.F. Goodson, 2006-01-16 Social Geographies as spatial location is a factor relevant to understanding the variety of people's interpretations and appropriations of educational innovations and changes Their location in the social space also influences their response to change In the field of educational change social space means for example skin colour gender distribution of teachers in one school children's self cultural representations or parents religious attitudes By using the notion of Social Geographies in the context of educational change the authors address the following questions How initiatives in a classroom or department are influenced by the surrounding context of the school the district or the nation How innovation spreads or diffuses from one school to another How and whether reforms can be scaled up from a few schools to a whole system How seemingly standardised reforms affect schools differently depending on where they are located How schools influence one another How the identities of and interrelationships among schools are affected by technology principles of market competition and choice and other initiatives This volume is relevant to educationalists policy makers teachers and students interested in a more complex approach to understand and intervene in educational change processes

Social Media and Interactive Communications Mark Durkin, Aodheen McCartan, Mairead Brady, 2018-02-05 The extent to which social media can potentially add value within various service contexts is not well understood While at a general level it would seem that direct and immediate interactive communication with customers and stakeholders would be of benefit in terms of general communications the integration of new media alongside more traditional marketing activities is not without difficulty. Many organisations appear seduced by what new technological communication channels are capable of but evidence suggests that those same organisations may have limited sensitivity to the appropriateness of employing social media to add value to the customers service experience. Launching social media initiatives appears low cost and fairly straightforward technically but managing the subsequent interactions and engagement appropriately and indeed profitably can often be beyond a firm's resources and competencies. In this book the challenges of effectively managing interactive communications through social media is described in various service contexts e.g. healthcare, travel, small businesses and within prevailing yet ever more crucial marketing concepts such as customer relationship management (CRM) and customer complaining behaviour. This book was originally published as a special issue of the Service Industries Journal.

Social Media for Project Management Johan Ninan, 2022-11-17. The number of projects is increasing worldwide as traditional and repetitive tasks are carried out through automation. Projects being temporary and unique while being adopted globally across sectors presents a challenge for the effective management of environmental, economic and social parameters. Projects are people-centric and require the effective management of internal and external stakeholders. In the modern age, social media is seen as a tool that connects people across the world, having significant implications on everyone's daily life. Social media is used for different purposes and encompasses multiple affordances as these are often free and also bring together people from different walks of life who tend to use them differently. However, the role of social media in managing projects is still under-explored. In this edited book, multiple authors working on the application of social media in projects come together to craft an agenda for the future. First, the use of social media for internal stakeholders such as managers and engineers are discussed. Following this, the use of social media for external stakeholders such as communities and project-affected persons are discussed. Finally, the guidelines for education using social media and research using social media are discussed. Thus, the book brings together multiple authors to discuss how social media can be used in project settings to facilitate interactions and strategic conversations across hierarchical levels and geographic boundaries for diverse goals. The book is a valuable resource for all project management academics, researchers and practitioners who are interested in learning about the application of social media in project settings.
