Meeting,1982 Banking on Death Robin Blackburn,2020-05-05 Banking on Death offers a panoramic view of the history and future of pension provision A work of unique scope it traces the origins and development of the pension idea from the days of the French Revolution to the troubles of the modern welfare state As we live longer employers are closing their pension schemes and many claim that public treasuries will not be able to cope with the retirement of the babyboomers Banking on Death analyses the challenge facing public schemes and the malfunctioning of private retirement provision concluding with a bold proposal for how to pay for decent pensions for all Robin Blackburn argues that pension funds have been depleted by wasteful promotion and used as gambling chips by ruthless and overpaid top executives This is the world of grey capitalism where employees savings are sequestered from them and pressed into the service of corporate aggrandisement Even the best companies find it hard to run a business and a pension fund at the same time especially when the latter is larger than the former The fund managers notorious short termism and herd instinct and their failure to curb the greed and irresponsibility of the corporate elite lead to obscene inequalities and a blighted social landscape The pension privatisation lobby Blackburn shows has lost major battles in France and Germany the United States and Italy because of the popular fears it evokes And the case for privatisation looks intellectually threadbare after withering critiques from such notable theorists as Joseph Stiglitz and Pierre Bourdieu Banking on Death shows that pensions are political dynamite and have undone governments from France and Italy to Argentina Popular outcries led Reagan Clinton and Blair to change tack will this happen to George W Bush too Blackburn argues that the ageing society will generate increased costs but so long as the new life course is properly financed all age groups will gain He proposes a public regime of asset based welfare drawing on the ideas of John Maynard Keynes and Rudolf Meidner that could ensure secondary pensions for all and foster a more responsible egalitarian and humane pattern of economic development Statistics of Income and Related potentially dire implications for the health of our society In this impassioned new book Andrea Batista Schlesinger argues that we re besieged by cultural forces that urge us to avoid independent thought and critical analysis The media reduces politics to a spectator sport focusing on polls and personalities rather than issues and ideas Schools teach to standardized tests students learn to fill in the bubbles not open their minds Financial literacy courses have replaced civics classes graduating smart shoppers rather than informed citizens Even the Internet promotes habits that discourage inquiry Regurgitating search engine results becomes a substitute for genuine research and reflection Social networks promote connection rather than engagement With all the information available online over a third of those younger than twenty five say they get no news on a typical day up from twenty five percent in 1998 The situation isn t hopeless Batista Schlesinger spotlights individuals and institutions across the country that are working to renew a healthy sense of curiosity and skepticism particularly in American s youth It is at this point an uphill battle but one well worth undertaking The Death of Why offers both a penetrating socio cultural critique of our current path and a way forward for cultivating inquiry and reinvigorating our democracy From her start in politics as a teenager Andrea Batista Schlesinger has asked the important questions Now she asks her most important are we teaching young people to value inquiry and if not what hope can we have for the future of democracy Katrina vanden Heuvel Publisher The Nation The Death of Why makes the case that we cannot create social change without a culture of questioning We should pay close attention to this brilliant contribution Deepak Bhargava executive director Center for Community Change She asks the right questions at a time when we seem more eager for answers that we don t understand or care about Deborah Meier Senior Scholar New York University author of In Schools We Trust and The Power of Their Ideas and founder of innovative New York and Boston area public schools
