The ethics of consumption Helena Röcklinsberg, Per Sandin, 2013-11-05 We are all consumers What we consume how and how much has consequences of great moral importance for humans animals and the environment Great challenges lie ahead as we are facing population growth and climate change and reduced availability of fossil fuels It is often argued that key to meeting those challenges is changing consumption patterns among individual as well as institutions for instance through reducing meat consumption switching to organic or fair trade products boycotting or buycotting certain products or consuming less overall There is considerable disagreement regarding how to bring this about whose responsibility it is and even whether it is desirable Is it a question of political initiatives producer responsibility the virtues and vices of individual consumers in the developed world or something else Many of these issues pose profound intellectual challenges at the intersection of ethics political philosophy economics and several other fields This publication brings together contributions from scholars in numerous disciplines including philosophy law economics sociology and animal welfare who explore the theme of the ethics of consumption from different angles

Universally Comprehensible, Arrogantly Local Wiebke Keim, 2017-04-01 From the perspective of the international scholarly community under North Atlantic domination South Africa might look like a peripheral place of knowledge production In recent years a plethora of voices calling for provincializing Europe for deconstructing Eurocentrism and for adopting post and decolonial perspectives have challenged such views They have partly transformed the academic landscape but have had limited success in challenging the fundamental global divides in production circulation and recognition of social scientific knowledge This book chooses a different take on the question of how North Atlantic domination could be challenged by conceptualizing counter hegemonic currents in international sociology Instead of providing theoretical and deconstructive critiques counter hegemonic currents are effective through collective social scientific practice the production of data knowledge and texts of new generations of scholars the interaction with extra university actors leading to the gradual emergence of integrated and productive scientific communities Their orientation towards local arenas of discussion and production of socially relevant research effectively reduces the belief in the hegemony of the North The historical development of South African labour studies is a case in point This study provides a systematic in depth analysis of research and teaching activities networks with extra academic actors and international cooperation over time in the three major Labour Studies centres Johannesburg Durban and Cape Town It draws on a rich variety of material including annual reports of research centres and labour service organizations teaching contents and exam questions the 1974 2003 volumes of the South African Labour Bulletin and newsletters of ISA Research Committee 44 on Labour Movements Qualitative analysis of four seminal books is used to assess their contribution to original general theory building In depth interviews with Labour Studies representatives complement the analysis of documents and literature by reconstructing the oral history of this scholarly community an indispensable source given that many debates could not appear in written form or had to be watered during the Apartheid years The study concludes that over time South African social scientists have generated knowledge on labour industry and trade unions that is universally comprehensible but arrogantly local Handbook of Research on Effective Online Language Teaching in a Disruptive Environment LeLoup, Jean W., Swanson, Pete, 2021-11-26 The COVID 19 pandemic radically and rapidly and perhaps forever changed the K 20 educational landscape In March 2020 K 12 schools and institutions of higher education were forced to pivot quickly to online and remote teaching This new paradigm resulted in many teachers regardless of content area being unprepared In the field of second language teaching and learning world language and TESOL educators require the investigation of techniques used during the global pandemic to ensure continued success in online teaching practice The Handbook of Research on Effective Online Language Teaching in a Disruptive Environment provides strong and cogent guidance in the use of pedagogically sound methods of online language instruction This book builds an innovative knowledge base about teaching during disruptive times in the context of K 20 language learning that is supported with empirical evidence Covering topics such as online work engagement reflective practice and flipped classroom methods this handbook serves as a powerful resource for instructors of English language arts and TESOL TESOL professionals pre service teachers professors administrators instructional designers curriculum developers students researchers and academicians

Race in the College Classroom Maureen T. Reddy, Bonnie TuSmith, 2002 Winner of the 2003 American Educational Studies Association Critics Choice Awards Winner of the 2003 Gustavus Myers Outstanding Book Award Did affirmative action programs solve the problem of race on American college campuses as several recent books would have us believe If so why does talking about race in anything more than a superficial way make so many students uncomfortable Written by college instructors from many disciplines this volume of essays takes a bold first step toward a nationwide conversation Each of the twenty nine contributors addresses one central question what are the challenges facing a college professor who believes that teaching responsibly requires an honest and searching examination of race Professors from the humanities social sciences sciences and education consider topics such as how the classroom environment is structured by race the temptation to retreat from challenging students when faced with possible reprisals in the form of complaints or negative evaluations the implications of using standardized evaluations in faculty tenure and promotion when the course subject is intimately connected with race and the varying ways in which white faculty and faculty of color are impacted by teaching about race Climate Change and Human Well-Being Inka Weissbecker, 2011-08-04 Climate change is increasing the severity of disasters and adverse weather conditions worldwide with particularly devastating effects on developing countries and on individuals with lower resources Climate change is likely to impact mental health and psychosocial well being via multiple pathways leading to new challenges Direct effects such as gradual environmental changes higher temperatures and natural disasters are likely to lead to more indirect consequences such as social and economic stressors population displacement and conflict Climate change largely the product of industrialized nations is projected to magnify existing inequalities and to impact the most vulnerable including those with low resources individuals living in developing countries and specific populations such as women children and those with pre existing disabilities This book outlines areas of impact on human well being consider specific populations and shed light on mitigating the impact of climate change
