- The cordless telephone base unit plugs into a digital station port.
- For best results, the base unit should be placed in line-of-site with its handset.
- Cordless telephone range and reception can vary from site to site. Some of the things that may adversely affect range and reception are:
 - Placing the base against or close to a wall (particularly if the wall has metal studs).
 - Positioning the base close to a device that emits Electromagnetic Interference (EMI), such as a TV, radio, computer, fluorescent light, fax machine, or printer.
 - Installing the base close to other 900 Mhz devices, such as Symbol or Telex hand-held inventory devices.
 - Installing the base above a ceiling that uses foil-backed insulation.
 - Installing the base behind a door which can be closed, tinted windows, or one-way glass which will separate the base from the handset.
- Always raise the base unit antenna to its full vertical position.
- When installing more than one cordless telephone in the same site:
 - Be sure the base units are at least 15 feet apart.
 - Do not install more than 12 cordless telephones in an area of close proximity.
 - After installation, change each telephone's channel by pressing CH on the handset. This will minimize interference between your cordless telephones. There are 30 available channels.
- The handset must charge 5-8 hours in its charger prior to initial use.
- The Nickel Metal Hydride Rechargeable Battery Pack is recyclable. If you replace a battery pack, always dispose of the old pack along with your other recyclable materials.
