Wither Globalization Enter Connectedness:

Wither Globalization Enter Connectedness Geoffreyson Khamala, 2014-11-27 For countless millennia relatedness has been the fulcrum of world politics economics society psychology and technology In this write up I demonstrate why and how globalization a form of relatedness is being replaced by connectedness as manifest in the way humanity organizes itself politically economically socially and emotionally The world is herein best understood in terms of spatial position space and non spatial relationships Spatial dimensions simply refer to physical objects geography and location Non spatial dimensions connect us with the rest of the universe in non physical realms Non spatial dimensions include gravity electromagnetism strong nuclear interaction weak nuclear interaction dark matter dark energy mental faculties senses emotions time life and death This is on the understanding that with no discernible edge to the cosmos the universe is extended infinitely Therefore the universe is an infinitely extended point In an infinite universe every point location in non Euclidean space can be regarded as the center of the universe Humans and other life forms evolve practice and learn to manipulate phenomena physical and non physical phenomena to stay alive Human socio political and economic configurations and the subsequent terrestrial squabbles informed by relatedness are frequently driven by the fear of death but ordinarily manifest as struggles for supremacy resources and mating partners Connectedness represents a sustainable form of global integration made possible by increased human awareness of our bond with the rest of the universe and the consequent capacity to transform nature through relentless invention innovation and deployment of new technologies to simplify daily lives and transform humanity by facilitating the collapse of natural and artificial boundaries across the world Unlike globalization connectedness global connectivity and togetherness represents the total collapse of boundaries and divisions in the human society in the quest to protect life Admirably it appears both inanimate and animate realms have always conspired to constantly sustain life And as life forms manage to withstand extremes chances are that endless life may be achieved So far only the jellyfish is capably undying

Connectivity and Global Studies Jan Nederveen Pieterse, 2021-02-20 This textbook provides readers with evocative and analytical accounts of social processes that are linked to globalization and connectivity which includes a wide range of multi centred connections in history DNA analysis technology art populism and political economy Rather than globalization Nederveen Pieterse focuses on connectivity His approach to globalization differs from both structuralist accounts of the world system and the institutionally centred focus of much work in international studies This synthesis will provide a new resource to reconstruct theoretical approaches to globalization and global studies Fluently written clearly organized and with an interdisciplinary approach the book will be accessible to upper division undergraduates and graduates in social sciences including students and researchers from the fields of sociology politics political economy development studies and international relations

Whither Globalization and Supply Chain? Chul Chung, 2023 Globalization has been a dominant trend in the world economy over the past few decades However in recent years globalization may be facing headwinds While globalization has brought about many benefits such as economic growth poverty reduction and increased access to goods and services it has also been criticized for being responsible for rising inequality environmental degradation and social disruptions So is globalization over This might be a defining question for today's global economy Professor Joseph Nye of Harvard University wrote an article with the exact title in March this year Early in 2020 right after the COVID 19 pandemic broke out deglobalization quickly became a buzzword Professor Douglas Irwin of Dartmouth College among others wrote a column for VoxEU which was titled The pandemic adds momentum to the deglobalisation trend In stark contrast to what these titles suggest however both of them argue the opposite in their conclusions More recently tensions between the US and China have risen sharply leading to elevated pressure for decoupling of the global supply chain and intense competition in critical industries and advanced technologies Nevertheless in a speech at Johns Hopkins University a few days ago US Treasury Secretary Janet Yellen warned that any US effort to decouple from China would be disastrous and called for a constructive and fair economic relationship between China and the US Secretary Yellen's speech might be reinforcing the view that it requires collective efforts and cooperation of all stakeholders to address pressing global common issues Globalization is not going away at least for the time being Rather it is evolving with its governance undergoing a transformation required to adapt to the changing economic realities All Connected Now Walter Truett

Anderson, 2019-04-02 Going beyond the narrow economic focus common to most books about globalization All Together Now describes four kinds of global change economic political cultural biological all of which are now accelerating driven by the increasing mobility of symbols goods people and non human life forms Anderson describes how we are entering an age of o

All Connected Now Walter Truett Anderson, 2003-07-11 A vivid description of the cultural political economic and environmental changes that globalization is bringing Global Connectivity and Local Transformation Jiaming Sun, 2008-02-07 Increasing overseas traveling booming Internet and electronic communication and expanding global social ties are primary features of intensifying global connectivity and integration Global Connectivity and Local Transformation conceptualizes global connectivity as a powerful but varied mechanism that links local people to the global society Professor Jiaming Sun explores the massive global connectivity that has been woven in two decades in Shanghai People with stronger and more extensive global connectivity with a net of other social economic characteristics make significant differences in terms of cultural adaptation in local society By employing the empirical study method this study features detailed quantitative analyses to measure global connectivity in an innovative and compelling way Outside the Box Marc Levinson, 2021-09-28 The author offers a brief history of globalization through the stories of the people and companies that built global supply chains The two spheres the private sector and government did not go global in tandem and many developments in one sphere were far more impactful in the other than imagined at the time The book narrates the development of global supply chains in response to trends in both telling stories ranging from a Prussian born trader in New Jersey in the 1760s who dreamed of building a vertically integrated metals empire to new megaships too big to call on most of the world's ports leaving half empty as globalization entered a new stage in its history around 2006 Bringing the story up to the early 2020s the author illustrates how we're not experiencing the end of globalization only its transformation As one type of globalization is declining a new one is on the rise Connexity Geoff Mulgan, 1997 Contrasts the implications of individual and global approaches to future world development Connectography Parag Mehta, 2016-05-19 Which lines on the map matter most Imagine a map of the world in your mind Now erase all the borderlines Now replace those borderlines with new lines connecting regions Those new lines represent motorways bridges tunnels railways oil pipes supply chains and electricity grids in a word connectivity In Connectography Parag Mehta argues that a global network civilization is emerging based around increasing connectivity between nations cities companies and people that political states as represented on a traditional world map are becoming redundant He travels from Ukraine to Iran Mongolia to North Korea London to Dubai and the Arctic Circle to the South China Sea all to show how twenty first century conflict is a tug of war over pipelines and internet cables advanced technologies and market access A world in which the most connected powers and people will win But beneath the chaos of a world that appears to be falling apart is a new foundation of connectivity pulling it together All Connected Now Walter Anderson, 2004 This text describes four kinds of global change economic political cultural biological all of which are now accelerating driven by the increasing mobility of symbols goods people and non human life forms
