Saving the News Martha Minow, 2021-06-15 A detailed argument of how our government has interfered in the direction of America's media landscape that traces major transformations in media since the printing press and charts a path for reform In Saving the News Martha Minow takes stock of the new media landscape She focuses on the extent to which our constitutional system is to blame for the current parlous state of affairs and on our government's responsibilities for alleviating the problem As Minow shows the First Amendment of the US Constitution assumes the existence and durability of a private industry Although the First Amendment does not govern the conduct of entirely private enterprises nothing in the Constitution forecloses government action to regulate concentrated economic power to require disclosure of who is financing communications or to support news initiatives where there are market failures Moreover the federal government has contributed financial resources laws and regulations to develop and shape media in the United States Thus Minow argues that the transformation of media from printing presses to the internet was shaped by deliberate government policies that influenced the direction of private enterprise In short the government has crafted the direction and contours of America's media ecosystem Building upon this basic argument Minow outlines an array of reforms including a new fairness doctrine regulating digital platforms as public utilities using antitrust authority to regulate the media policing fraud and more robust funding of public media As she stresses such reforms are not merely plausible ideas they are the kinds of initiatives needed if the First Amendment guarantee of freedom of the press continues to hold meaning in the twenty first century

The World According to Harry Harry Redknapp, 2019-05-30. THE SUNDAY TIMES BESTSELLER. The beautiful game has taught me a lot, but I've had quite a life outside of football too. This book is full of my best stories: kickabouts with jumpers for goalposts with Bobby Moore, mine and Sandra's disastrous honeymoon to Torquay in a dodgy car, and my funniest Mr. Pastry moments, as well as my thoughts on the important things in life. I'm finally sharing what I've learned on and off the pitch, from growing up poor in Poplar to the heights of the Premiership and even lying in a coffin with a load of rats on national television. It's everything I know about true team spirit, hard work, tough times, why family are so important, and why everyone deserves respect, no matter whether they're royal or sleeping rough, and of course the real joy of a jam roly poly.
