

They Cage the Animals at Night Chapter 13 Objective Summary

After witnessing his mom fall off the roof while trying to fix the televisual antenna, Jennings finds himself in get another orphanage, his fifth. This time it is the Child Welfare Bureau, a state agency. He manages to bring Duggie, who provides him some comfort as he settles into a rather dormitory-type home with bunk beds. At this orphanage, Jennings is assigned number 889496. He finds that this place is similar to St. Teresa's - everything from the breakfast food they serve to the lines they make for children march in. Just minutes off his time at St. Teresa's come flooding back to Jennings. He goes outside and notices that the fence surrounding the orphanage has barbed wire across the top. For the first time in his journey, Jennings truly feels as though he is a prisoner.

Just when he can't feel much worse, Jennings hears a familiar voice and turns around to find Mark, his good friend from the home of the Angels. Mark and Jennings are thrilled to see each other, and their friendship quickly picks up where it left off. Jennings shares with Mark that Jerome told him "It's what you feel inside about someone that makes you brothers, not the last name." Jennings tells Mark he is his brother, and Mark happily accepts.

Although Jennings is excited to be reunited with Mark, he becomes upset when an orphanage employee tells him to go to class, making him realize that he is becoming a "teen." As Jennings and Mark spend the day and evening playing together, Jennings notices that Mark looks sick and complains of feeling tired a lot. Over the next few days, Mark's condition does not improve. One day at lunch, he passes out and is taken to the hospital.

After asking several of the orphanage workers for an update on Mark's condition and getting nothing, Jennings decides to run away and go to the hospital to check on Mark. He doesn't even get past the barbed wire fence before being caught and taken back inside the home. Once back inside, Jennings

Pray for morning. Joule and Cage Mazur feel like prisoners in their home. With something new stalking the streets at night, their family's only protection is bolting the door and embracing the darkness. And even though they manage to trap and kill one of the monsters, their locks won't hold forever. Dealing with rising panic and rage in the neighborhood, the free-spirited survivors hatch a plan to undermine the killers. But with the night hunters picking off everyone they can, Joule and Cage know time is ticking toward humanity's extinction. Can they kill the Night Hunters and reclaim the top of the food chain? THE SURFACE No Power. No Food. No Rescue. When the rains came the first time and campus flooded Cage thought it was a freak weather incident Joule saw it for what it was a warning Life went back to normal when most of the water receded But the standing puddles left behind weren't normal Something had laid eggs in it The creatures from the San Francisco Bay found a path into the floodwaters As the rain comes harder the second time the flood is much deeper and those who go underwater don't come back up The rip currents are the least dangerous things in the water Can Cage and Joule escape How will they survive when even the land isn't safe And what about the ones they left behind THE TEMPEST Find shelter Stay low Hold on tight The first tornado was an anomaly It cleared the land and bumped up the time scale on the job But as everyone rushes to set up the new solar farm they find that something has shifted At first it was a series of small unassuming whirlwinds a nuisance more than a real concern But soon the funnels get bigger and the winds get stronger and there's nowhere safe to hide When Joule and Cage get separated the winds get even more dangerous They've always had each other's backs but now they'll have to survive on their own Can they even help the people who live in the path of the fury Maybe if they can save themselves first These are the first three books in the fast paced Black Carbon apocalyptic thriller series by a USA Today bestselling author If you like resourceful heroes world ending catastrophes and breathtaking action you'll love AJ Scudiere's spine tingling series BLACK CARBON
