Water, Technology and the Nation-State Filippo Menga, Erik Swyngedouw, 2018-05-15 Just as space territory and society can be socially and politically co constructed so can water and thus the construction of hydraulic infrastructures can be mobilised by politicians to consolidate their grip on power while nurturing their own vision of what the nation is or should become This book delves into the complex and often hidden connection between water technological advancement and the nation state addressing two major questions First the arguments deployed consider how water as a resource can be ideologically constructed imagined and framed to create and reinforce a national identity and secondly how the idea of a nation state can and is materially co constituted out of the material infrastructure through which water is harnessed and channelled The book consists of 13 theoretical and empirical interdisciplinary chapters covering four continents The case studies cover a diverse range of geographical areas and countries including China Cyprus Egypt Ethiopia France Nepal and Thailand and together illustrate that the meaning and rationale behind water infrastructures goes well beyond the control and regulation of water resources as it becomes central in the unfolding of power dynamics across time and space
