Paget-Wilkes, 2020-05-29 This book calls for a major paradigm shift in the church's thinking and practice if the church is to engage with the upcoming generations of the third decade of this fast changing twenty first century Just as the church has had to adapt to a changing context in the past it now needs to engage seriously with this post enlightenment post human techno centric age of artificial intelligence However the church also needs to recall its counter cultural prophetic role following Elijah Jeremiah Amos Jesus and Paul challenging society as it faces complex dilemmas raised by technology driven development in these unprecedented times The church will have to acknowledge unaddressed weaknesses in the past of identifying with established power rather than vulnerability and the marginalized of depending on a hierarchical ministerial order at the expense of the ministry of every believer of acquiescing to materialist anthropocentric and consumerist growth as an undisputable norm This book develops the vision of a church engaged in the mission of God of welcoming technological development but with an eye on kingdom values of promoting innovation so long as it does not result in a growth of inequality or at the expense of the environment of pointing towards a humanity that deepens its relationships with its Creator its fellow humans and its environment The author calls on grassroots believers to reflect and act within their local communities as inspired and empowered daughters and sons of God in the knowledge that following Jesus Christ provides a radical new paradigm for living learning and leading in and through these times of epochal change

Postcolonial Poetics Elleke Boehmer, 2018-06-27 Postcolonial Poetics is about how we read postcolonial and world literatures today and about how the structures of that writing shape our reading The book's eight chapters explore the ways in which postcolonial writing in English from various 21st century contexts including southern and West Africa and Black and Asian Britain interacts with our imaginative understanding of the world Throughout the focus is on reading practices where reading is taken as an inventive border traversing activity one that postcolonial writing with its interests in margins intersections subversions and crossings specifically encourages This close sustained focus on reading reception and literariness is an outstanding feature of the study as is its wide generic range embracing poetry essays and life writing as well as fiction The field defining scholar Elleke Boehmer holds that literature has the capacity to keep reimagining and refreshing how we understand ourselves in relation to the world and to some of the most pressing questions of our time including resistance reconciliation survival after terror and migration

Things Fall

Apart? Pauline von Hellermann, 2013-09-01 Governance failure and corruption are increasingly identified as key causes of tropical deforestation In Nigeria s Edo State once the showcase of scientific forestry in West Africa large scale forest conversion and the virtual depletion of timber stocks are invariably attributed to recent failures in forest management and are seen as yet another instance of how things fall apart in Nigeria Through an in depth historical and ethnographic study of forestry in Edo State this book challenges this routine linking of political and ecological crisis narratives It shows that the roots of many of today s problems lie in scientific forest management itself rather than its recent abandonment and moreover that many illegal local practices improve rather than reduce biodiversity and forest cover The book therefore challenges preconceptions about contemporary Nigeria and highlights the need to reevaluate current understandings of what constitutes good governance in tropical forestry

Blessed Are the Peacemakers Helen Paynter, 2023-11-07 This volume in Biblical Theology for Life series dives deeply into the topic of human violence Before exploring what the Bible says about violence Old Testament scholar Helen Paynter sets out the contours for the study ahead by addressing the various definitions of violence and the theories of its origins prevalence and purpose What is violence Is there such a thing as natural violence Is violence a human or social construct or can we describe natural phenomena as violent How does the concept of violence relate to the concept of evil Violence is everywhere is it escapable How do we resist violence Having queued up the questions Paynter takes us to the Bible for answers Starting with the creation narratives in Genesis considered in comparison with the ancient Near Eastern myths and moving to the conquest of Canaan the most problematic of biblical narratives she investigates how these deep myths speak to the origins of human violence and its consequences The prevalence of violence through biblical history is inescapable Scripture reveals the hydra like nature of human violence investigating types of violence including but not limited to structural violence verbal violence sexual violence violence as public political act racialised violence including othering Through the voices of the prophets and then in the teaching of Jesus the Bible reveals that the seeds of violence exist within every human heart Even though we see evidence of resistance movements in the Bible such as the responses to attempted genocide in Exodus and Esther it is only on the cross that an absorption of violence by God takes place a defeat of violence by self sacrifice Along the way Paynter considers other relevant biblical themes including the apocalypse crushing the serpent s head and the concept of divine vengeance culminating in the resurrected Christ s lack of vengeance against those who did him to death In light of the New Testament we will consider how the first Christians responded to the structural violence of slavery and patriarchy and how they began to apply Jesus redemptive non vengeful theology to their own day The book concludes by discussing of what this means for Christians today For many of us who live without routine encounters with or threats of violence we must consider our responsibility in a world where our experience is the exception With attention to the multi headed hydra that is violence and the concealed structures of violence in our own Western society Paynter challenges readers to consider their own perhaps inherited privilege and complicity The question of how we regard others both as individuals and as societies is a deeply relevant and urgent one for the church The church can and should be a wholly non othering body So what implications does this have for the church and for example Black Lives Matter or the rampant xenophobia in our society or immigration and global migration issues How do we resist evil What does it mean to turn the other cheek when the cheek that has been slapped is not our own How do we resist the monster without becoming the monster novel but reinvented the genre Nigerian novels imagined the new state with its ideals of the rule of law state sovereignty and a centralized administration Debt Law Realism argues that Nigerian novels were not written for a Western audience as often stated but to teach fellow citizens how to envision the state The first Nigerian novels were overwhelmingly realist because realism was a way to convey the understanding shared by all subject to the rule of law Debt was an important theme used to illustrate the social trust needed to live with strangers But the novelists felt an ambivalence towards the state which had been imposed by colonial military might Even as they embraced the ideal of the rule of law they kept alive a memory of other ways of governing themselves Many of the first novelists including Chinua Achebe were Igbos a people who had been historically stateless and for whom justice had been a matter of interpersonal relations consensus and reciprocity rather than a citizen s subordination to a higher authority Debt Law Realism reads African novels as political philosophy offering important lessons about the foundations of social trust the principle of succession and the nature of sovereignty authority and law

Utopian Generations Nicholas Brown,2009-01-10 Utopian

Generations develops a powerful interpretive matrix for understanding world literature one that renders modernism and postcolonial African literature comprehensible in a single framework within which neither will ever look the same African literature has commonly been seen as representationally naïve vis vis modernism and canonical modernism as reactionary vis vis postcolonial literature What brings these two bodies of work together argues Nicholas Brown is their disposition toward Utopia or the horizon of a radical reconfiguration of social relations Grounded in a profound rethinking of the Hegelian Marxist tradition this fluently written book takes as its point of departure the partial displacement during the twentieth century of capitalism's internal limit classically conceived as the conflict between labor and capital onto a geographic division of labor and wealth Dispensing with whole genres of commonplace contemporary pieties Brown examines works from both sides of this division to create a dialectical mapping of different modes of Utopian aesthetic practice The theory of world literature developed in the introduction grounds the subtle and powerful readings at the heart of the book focusing on works by James Joyce Cheikh Hamidou Kane Ford Madox Ford Chinua Achebe Wyndham Lewis Ngugi wa Thiong'o and Pepetela A final chapter arguing that this literary dialectic has reached a point of exhaustion suggests that a radically reconceived notion of musical practice may be required to discern the Utopian desire immanent in the products of contemporary culture

When Things Don't Fall Apart Ilene Grabel, 2019-08-06 An account of the significant though gradual uneven disconnected ad hoc and pragmatic innovations in global financial governance and developmental finance induced by the global financial crisis In When Things Don't Fall Apart Ilene Grabel challenges the dominant view that the global financial crisis had little effect on global financial governance and developmental finance Most observers discount all but grand systemic ruptures in institutions and policy Grabel argues instead that the global crisis induced inconsistent and ad hoc discontinuities in global financial governance and developmental finance that are now having profound effects on emerging market and developing economies Grabel's chief normative claim is that the resulting incoherence in global financial governance is productive rather than debilitating In the age of productive incoherence a more complex dense fragmented and pluripolar form of global financial governance is expanding possibilities for policy and institutional experimentation policy space for economic and human development financial stability and resilience and financial inclusion Grabel draws on key theoretical commitments of Albert Hirschman to cement the case for the productivity of incoherence Inspired by Hirschman Grabel demonstrates that meaningful change often emerges from disconnected erratic experimental and inconsistent adjustments in institutions and policies as actors pragmatically manage in an evolving world Grabel substantiates her claims with empirically rich case studies that explore the effects of recent crises on networks of financial governance such as the G 20 transformations within the IMF institutional innovations in liquidity support and project finance from the national to the transregional levels and the rebranding of capital controls Grabel concludes with a careful examination of the opportunities and risks associated with the evolutionary transformations underway Four Degrees of Global Warming Peter Christoff, 2013-10-15 At Copenhagen in December 2009 the international community agreed to limit global warming to below two degrees Celsius to avoid the worst impacts of human induced climate change However climate scientists agree that current national emissions targets collectively will still not achieve this goal Instead the ambition gap between climate science and climate policy is likely to lead to average global warming of around four degrees Celsius by or before 2100 If a Four Degree World is the de facto goal of policy we urgently need to understand what this world might look like Four Degrees of Global Warming Australia in a Hot World outlines the expected consequences of this world for Australia and its region Its contributors include many of Australia's most eminent and internationally recognized climate scientists climate policy makers and policy analysts They provide an accessible detailed dramatic and disturbing examination of the likely impacts of a Four Degree World on Australia's social economic and ecological systems The book offers policy makers politicians students and anyone interested climate change access to the most recent research on potential Australian impacts of global warming and possible responses
