

Conflict-perpetuating routines in the Cypriot comfortable Problem

The final version of this paper is published (2015) in "Resolving Cyprus: New Approaches to Conflict Resolution", eds. Ker-Lindsay J. London: J.B.Tauris, pp. 3-13

By: Constantinos Adamides

The intractability of the Cyprus conflict has developed into an academic challenge for analysts who strive for decades to present a comprehensive explanation on why the 'Problem' remains unresolved. Few would argue that there is a unique explanatory factor responsible for the so-called Cyprus imbroglio; analyses are diverse and frequently depend on the analysts' ethnic affiliation and their academic and theoretical inclination. Some take for granted the presence of political and public determination for settlement but question the inability to reach one for reasons ranging from the intransigent positions of the 'other', to weak civil society actors, to the involvement of external third parties. Others question the determination of one or both sides, emphasizing the lack of sufficient incentives to reach a settlement with the focus being, inter alia, on the non-hurting stalemate.

More sociological approaches focus on factors that lead to, or contribute towards, the development and perpetuation of perceptions that maintain incompatible and 'unbridgeable' views. The Problem is thus understood as an identity conflict characterized by the deep mistrust of the 'other', significant communication problems and internalized and rigid positions through which all historical and current issues are viewed in a way where there is only 'our truth' and 'their propaganda'. Attempts to explain the conflict in these terms frequently explore how historical events may be used to 'construct' threats for the future, which in turn, once formed they perpetuate the status quo, highlighting concurrently the profoundness of the mutually exclusive positions. Subsequently, in these analyses the unwillingness for settlement is perceived as the outcome of socially constructed threats and the established perceptions that the two sides' positions are irreconcilable. Unwillingness thus is not treated as a 'stand alone factor' for the perpetuation of the conflict, but rather only as a derivative of other factors.

Elite's behaviour supports the aforementioned view as the former constantly attempt to highlight how agreeable and flexible they are, shifting simultaneously all blame to the other side. Indeed, in their routine discourses political elite constantly emphasize their willingness for resolution and the unwillingness of their counterparts across the divide. The necessity for such behaviour should not be discounted, as it is often a necessary exercise to demonstrate internally their on-going efforts to the 'national cause', but also to prove to outsiders their commitment for settlement. This behaviour is supported by the public's conditioned demands for a solution for as long as it is just and viable, often without any consideration that each community conceptualizes the justice and viability of a settlement in diametrically opposite ways.

This article focuses on one particular reason that increases the complexity of the imbroglio, one that is the outcome of several factors, namely the inability of elite, media and public to challenge the existing discourses and stop the 'automatic' recycling of threats and negative perceptions of the 'other'. This inability to stop such conflict-perpetuating behaviour is the outcome of two factors: the structure of the conflict – which as argued below is a comfortable one – and the internalized conflict-maintaining routines that cannot be interrupted without significant cost for those who attempt to disrupt them. Subsequently, the high cost of interruption leads to 'involuntary' behaviour where decision-makers and public alike are left without real options other than those that maintain the conflict. It is also argued that a change in the first factor, namely if the conflict becomes less comfortable, may not suffice to change the second factor, namely the routines that perpetuate the conflict. This idea is tested by the severe financial crisis that could theoretically lead to a change in the incentive structure of the conflict.

In this collection an eminent authority on the history of political thought and on the intellectual history of modern Hellenism employs his twin academic specializations in political science and in intellectual history to understand the intricacies of the historical experience of his native island Writing in a perspective inspired by the work of Fernand Braudel he attempts in a series of studies in cultural and social history to recover lost and overlooked aspects of the collective destinies of Cyprus and the Cypriot diaspora in the centuries of Ottoman rule a period of critical significance for the survival of the people of the island He then turns to a penetrating analysis of the politics of the Cyprus Question The pertinent studies collected in this volume bear the imprint of the deep soul searching by the younger generation of Cypriot scholars at the time of the tragedy of 1974 over what went so wrong that their country was exposed to foreign invasion occupation and division The hints at answers to these questions offered by the author s interdisciplinary and critical treatment of the subject make this work an indispensable aid to anyone wishing to grasp the deeper antinomies and dilemmas immanent in the Cyprus Question

Party-Society Relations in the Republic of Cyprus Giorgos Charalambous,Christophoros Christophorou,2015-11-19
The Republic of Cyprus social and political culture is deeply partitocratic with a close relationship between state apparatus and the parties that influence the government s decisions However little is known about the social and political implications of the above traits and even less about how parties influence and are influenced by society at large The concept of linkage which refers to the linking of citizens with government and the political process is vital in the study of the electoral or ideological considerations of parties Parties decisions regarding their organization and image correlates with the effort made to keep up with public opinion Party Society Relations in the Republic of Cyprus adds a new dimension to the study of linkage considering the complexity of civil society as well as exploring the dynamics of political parties Bringing together specialists from a range of disciplines it examines the wider effects of partitocracy on democracy and uses it as a frame for exploring the construction maintenance or deformation of links between social groups and parties Through its analysis of both the partisan and societal aspects of party social relations it illuminates larger questions concerning the strategic complexity involved when politics and society interact Approaching the Republic of Cyprus as a representative case study of partitocratic political culture this book is a key resource for those interested in party and civil society politics as well as Cypriot Mediterranean and South East European politics

Minority Memory, Identity, and Reconciliation Gül M Gür,2025-07-02 Migration and minority rights are increasingly at the forefront of global discourse Minority Memory Identity and Reconciliation explores the lives of two often overlooked minority communities the Greek Orthodox minority in Istanbul T rkiye and the Turkish Muslim minority in Western Thrace Greece As empires dissolved the leaders and political elites of new smaller nations that emerged embarked on population exchanges to increase the ethnic and religious homogeneity of their nation states Although these two minority communities differ in religious ethnic and socioeconomic terms they both offer unique perspectives on what happens to people who live on what is perceived as the wrong side of an arbitrarily drawn border Drawing from the personal stories of members of these two minority communities regarding their struggle with displacement discrimination and cultural assimilation as well as comprehensive historical analysis this book examines how historical traumas national policies and sociopolitical dynamics have influenced contemporary minority memory and identity formation By incorporating interviews with community leaders civil society representatives and state officials this book offers a rich multifaceted perspective on the processes of memory and identity formation that underscores the broader implications of these processes for international relations in the region and minority rights G l M G r pulls together theories of nationalism collective memory and narrative practice to highlight the unique process of minority memory work and its role in sustaining minority identity and their advocacy efforts

Contemporary Social and Political Aspects of the Cyprus Problem Michalis Kontos,Jonathan Warner,2016-08-17 In today s world the issue of Cyprus is notable for all the wrong reasons because of the duration of the divisions in Cyprus itself between Greek Cypriots and Turkish Cypriots formalized since 1983 by a disputed international border across the island because of the involvement of Greece and Turkey for which the hyphenated Cypriot communities form proxy battalions and because of the failure of the United Nations longstanding efforts to resolve the conflict Much of the discussion in the book revolves around the difficulty of producing viable constitutional and civic arrangements in an

security concerns which lie at the heart of the protracted conflict in Cyprus This work offers a well grounded account of intractability in Cyprus by unfolding the rationale and prevalence of competitive approaches held by Greek and Turkish Cypriots alike The analysis explains how crude security interests give birth to an existentialist security dilemma that has so far prevented Greek and Turkish Cypriots and their security guarantors from reaching a durable settlement This book contains a systematic critique of the breadth and depth of the major security concerns embedded in the proposed federal bi zonal framework for Cyprus uncovering the impetus and rationale of the underlying insecurities that prompt the Greek and Turkish sides to compete on a series of state building aspects including the opposing understandings of self determination and sovereignty the competitive underpinnings of federal institutional design and the problematic role of third party involvement This book ultimately unravels a deeper and more pragmatic understanding of how competitive security considerations and geopolitical considerations link up to ethno federal design in post conflict environments This book will be of much interest to students of conflict studies federalism studies statebuilding European politics and International Relations

Post-Violence Societies Nasia Hadjigeorgiou,2020-02-20 This book critically examines the relationship between protecting human rights and building peace in post violence societies It explores the conditions that must be present and strategies that should be adopted for the former to contribute to the latter The author argues that human rights can aid peacebuilding efforts by helping victims of past violence to articulate their grievance and by encouraging the state to respond to and provide them with a meaningful remedy This usually happens either through a process of adjudication whereby human rights can offer guidance to the judiciary as to the best way to address such grievances or through the passing and implementation of human rights laws and policies that seek to promote peace However this positive relationship between human rights and peace is both qualified and context specific Through an interdisciplinary and comparative analysis of four case studies the book identifies the conditions that can support the effective use of human rights as peacebuilding tools Developing these the book recommends a series of strategies that peacebuilders should adopt and rely on Winner of the Constantinos Emilianides Award in Law for 2020 joint conferment States Falling Apart?
