1.) Example Summary of Primary Research Paper

Van der Laak, S. 1982. Physiological adaptations to low temperature in freezing-tolerant Phyllodecta laticollis beetles. Comp. Biochem. Physiol. 73A: 613-620.

Adult beetles (Phyllodecta laticollis), found in Norway, are exposed to sub-zero temperatures in the field throughout the year. In general, organisms that tolerate freezing conditions either produce extracellular nucleating agents that trigger ice formation outside the cells rather than within them or they produce biological antifreezes, such as glycerol, that lower the freezing point of the blood and tissues to below that of the environment, thereby preventing ice formation. This study (Van der Laak, 1982) documents the tolerance of P. laticollis to below-freezing temperatures and determines how seasonal shifts in the temperature tolerance of these beetles are mediated. Beetles were collected throughout the year and frozen to temperatures as low as -50C; post-thaw survivorship was then determined. Determinations were also made of the concentrations of solutes in the blood (that is, blood osmotic concentration), total water content, amino acid and glycerol concentrations in the blood, presence of nucleating agents in the blood, and the temperature to which blood could be super-cooled before it would freeze. The temperature tolerance of P. laticollis varied from about -9C in summer to about -42C in winter; this shift in freezing tolerance was paralleled by a dramatic winter increase in glycerol concentration and in total blood osmotic concentration. Amino acid concentration also increased in winter, but the contribution to blood osmolarity was small compared to that of glycerol. Nucleating agents were present in the blood year-round, ensuring that ice formation will occur extracellularly rather than intracellularly, even in summer.

For beetles collected in midwinter and early spring, blood glycerol concentrations could be artificially reduced by warming beetles to 23C (room temperature) for about 24-150h. When glycerol concentrations of spring and winter beetles were reduced to identical levels by warming, the spring beetles tolerated freezing better than the winter beetles; these differences in tolerance could not be explained by differences in amino acid concentrations. This result indicates that some other factors, as yet unknown, are also involved in determining the freezing tolerance of these beetles.

Chester,1984 Atlantic menhaden Brevoortia tyrannus the object of a major purse seine fishery along the U S east coast are landed at plants from northern Florida to central Maine The National Marine Fisheries Service has sampled these landings since 1955 for length weight and age Together with records of landings at each plant the samples are used to estimate numbers of fish landed at each age This report analyzes the sampling design in terms of probability sampling theory The design is classified as two stage cluster sampling the first stage consisting of purse seine sets randomly selected from the population of all sets landed and the second state consisting of fish randomly selected from each sample set Implicit assumptions of this design are discussed with special attention to current sampling procedures Methods are developed for estimating mean fish weight numbers of fish landed and age composition of the catch with approximate 95% confidence intervals Based on specific results from three ports Port Monmouth N J Reedville Va and Beaufort N C for the 1979 fishing season recommendations are made for improving sampling procedures to comply more exactly with assumptions of the sampling design These recommendations include adopting more formal methods for randomizing set and fish selection increasing the number of sets sampled considering the bias introduced by unequal set sizes and developing methods to optimize the use of funds and personnel
