Rule Britannia Deirdre David, 2018-10-18 Deirdre David here explores women's role in the literature of the colonial and imperial British nation both as writers and as subjects of representation. David's inquiry juxtaposes the parliamentary speeches of Thomas Macaulay and the private letters of Emily Eden, a trial in Calcutta, and the missionary literature of Victorian women writing about thuggee and emigration to Australia. David shows how in these texts and in novels such as Charlotte Brontë's Jane Eyre, Charles Dickens's Dombey and Son, Wilkie Collins's Moonstone, and H. Rider Haggard's She, the historical and symbolic roles of Victorian women were linked to the British enterprise abroad. Rule Britannia traces this connection from the early nineteenth-century nostalgia for masculine adventure to later patriarchal anxieties about female cultural assertiveness. Missionary, governess, and moral ideal promoting sacrifice for the good of the empire: such figures come into sharp relief as David discusses debates over English education in India, class conflicts sparked by colonization, and patriarchal responses to fears about feminism and race degeneration. In conclusion, she reveals how Victorian women as writers and symbols of colonization served as critics of empire.

Writing against the Curriculum Randi Gray Kristensen, Ryan M. Claycomb, 2009-11-05 Writing against the Curriculum responds to the growing popularity of Writing Across the Curriculum (WAC) and Writing in the Disciplines (WID) programs in universities and colleges across the United States. Many of these schools employ both an Introduction to Writing course and a subsequent selection of writing-intensive courses housed within academic departments, thus simultaneously offering opportunities to subvert disciplinary knowledge production in the earlier course even as they reaffirm those divisions in their later requirements. Written by administrators, faculty, and librarians at public and private institutions who teach traditional and online introductory and advanced writing classes, the essays in Writing against the Curriculum argue that these introductory composition classrooms make excellent spaces to question disciplinarity through the study of rhetoric with an emphasis on critical thinking and curricular flexibility before students experience disciplinary enforcement most intensely in the advanced courses. Thus, this collection intervenes in current discourses of theory and practice in the related fields of composition and cultural studies because simultaneous attention to both fields enables both the activist enactment of cultural studies theoretical ambitions and the interrogation of the theoretical and political implications of composition practices.

Some of the greatest English novels were written during the Victorian era and many are still widely read and taught today But many others written during that period have been neglected by scholars and modern readers alike A number of these novels were written by women and were popular when published Moreover they reveal perspectives of 19th century British culture not present in canonized works and therefore revise our understanding of Victorian life and attitudes With the increasing interest in revising Victorian history and gender scholarship especially through the rediscovery of lost texts written by women this book is a timely and much needed study The expert contributors to this volume argue the value of novels by such Victorian women writers as Grace Aguilar Catherine Crowe Charlotte Elizabeth Tonna Annie E Holdsworth Ella Hepworth Dixon Flora Annie Steel Anne Thackeray Sarah Grand Marie Corelli and others Most of the chapters address numerous works by a particular writer Each focuses on different social issues as well though most of them share an interest in gender politics Topics discussed include a 19th century Jewish novelist s navigation through Protestant spirituality the relationship of noncanonical governess novels to class and gender issues and forgotten works by women crime writers Other chapters analyze how women writers impelled social reform and subverted patriarchally defined religious issues The Journal of Education ,1893
