With the ever increasing number of opportunities in every aspect of modern life making choices becomes part of our daily routine It is thus only natural that social scientists have started to study human choice behavior Early efforts focused on modeling aggregate choice patterns of home buyers shoppers travelers and others Later studies aiming to achieve more realistic results have concentrated on simulating disaggregate behavior The most recent approach in choice research is the so called Discrete Choice Modeling It is a front line area mainly in contemporary transportation geography and behavioral research It focuses on individuals decision making processes regarding the choice of destinations modes departure times and routes Considerable research has been done on identifying and quantifying the general rules governing the individuals choice behavior but to the best of our knowledge there is no single book that solely deals with route choice The study of travelers route choice in networks is primarily oriented towards gaining insight into their spatial choice behavior How do people choose routes in a network what do they know what do they look for which road characteristics play a role On the basis of this information it is possible to design quantitative models aimed at predicting the use of routes dependent on the characteristics of the routes those of the surrounding environment and those of the travelers In this way traffic flows in the network can be calculated and the network performance can be evaluated      Catalog of Sears, Roebuck and Company
