4.2.3 The family unit often plays a crucial role in emotionally vulnerable prisoners who "at times are highly distressed and pessimistic, often are in self-harm and other self-destructive life threatening situations" (Kempster, 2008, p. 100). Kempster (2008) also states that, "prisoners are often highly distressed and in need of emotional support, and are often in a state of emotional distress" (Kempster, 2008, p. 100). Kempster (2008) also states that, "prisoners are often in a state of emotional distress and are often in a state of emotional distress" (Kempster, 2008, p. 100). Kempster (2008) also states that, "prisoners are often in a state of emotional distress and are often in a state of emotional distress" (Kempster, 2008, p. 100).

The Anthropology of Learning in Childhood David F. Lancy, John Bock, Suzanne Gaskins, 2010-01-15 The Anthropology of Learning in Childhood offers a large mural like portrait of childhood across time culture species and environment Even a casual reading of the literature on childhood will persuade one that learning is a very important topic that commands the attention of tens of thousands of scholars and practitioners Yet anthropological research on children has exerted relatively little influence on this community This book will change that The book demonstrates that anthropologists studying childhood can offer a description and theoretically sophisticated account of children s learning and its role in their development socialization and enculturation Further it demonstrates the particular contribution that children s learning makes to the construction of society and culture as well as the role that culture acquiring children play in human evolution Chapters have been contributed in archaeology primatology biological and cultural anthropology and cross cultural psychology
