

Time in Mitosis

In this experiment, you will be attempting to answer the following questions:

The Big Question:

How much time does a cell spend in each phase of Mitosis?

- A. How much time does the cell cycle take?*
- B. How long does each phase take?*
- C. What is different about cancer cells?*

Student Response Sheet

Before you begin looking at cells and data, read the pre-lab materials and complete the pre-lab questions in the eText. Then write a prediction and hypothesis below. Your prediction should state what you think will be the longest phase or that phases all take the same time. Your hypothesis will explain why you think this pattern will be seen in the data. Record your prediction/hypothesis below.

Prediction: Which phase do you think will take the longest? Prophase or Interphase is the longest phase of mitosis.

Hypothesis: What is the reason this phase will be longest? I believe this phase is the longest because the most complex things are happening during this phase in my opinion. DNA is breaking down and being set up to split apart and create new daughter cells.

Data Table

Follow the instructions in the eText beginning at the "Student Data Collection" header. Use the table below to enter the data you collect.

Data Table: Number of cells and time spent by onion root tip cells in each phase of Mitosis

Phases	Number of Cells			Totals	% of cells	Minutes
