Uttarakhand Police 2013 Question Paper:

Police and Crime Commissioners Bryn Caless, Jane Owens, 2016-03-30 Police and Crime Commissioners PCCs are elected representatives whose role is to ensure that police forces in England and Wales are running effectively. Intended to bring a public voice to policing and hold the police to account, the holders of this controversial role also control budgets and strategic planning. Bryn Caless and Jane Owens obtained unprecedented access to the PCCs and their chief police officer teams and undertook confidential interviews with both sides. The results reveal the innermost workings of the PCCs' relationships with the police, media partners and public. The authors analyse the election process in which PCCs polled the lowest local mandate ever and consider the future of this politically contested role. Examining the PCCs' impact on policing, this fascinating book makes essential reading for Police Crime Commissioners, chief officers, police officers, police trainers and academics, students and researchers in criminology and policing.

Securing Sierra Leone, 1997-2013 Peter Albrecht, Paul Jackson, 2015-06-19. Between 1991 and 2002, Sierra Leone was wracked by a devastating civil war and the complete collapse of state institutions. Since then, however, the UK's contribution to post-war reconstruction has been widely held up as an example of successful stabilisation and state building, particularly of the country's security and justice.

institutions Securing Sierra Leone 1997-2013 examines how the process of state building through security sector reform developed in Sierra Leone and the impact of this experience on international conceptualisations of such reform as well as on international interventions more broadly. The study is the most detailed of its kind based on a comprehensive analysis of UK engagement in Sierra Leone between 1997 and 2013 including a host of first hand accounts from key local and international actors. This monograph shows why the UK intervention in Sierra Leone has been a relative success. However, it also questions the sustainability of state building efforts that are driven by concepts of the liberal state. In Sierra Leone, critical challenges remain, not least in the combination of a particular vision of what a state should look like and the unrealistic expectations of progress on the part of the international community. Forensic Soil Science and Geology R.W. Policing in an Age of Austerity Michael Brogden, Graham Ellison, 2013 In the current context of financial retrenchment on public sector budgets, public policing in England and Wales today faces the prospect of dramatic change. While the question of role and function has been the bedrock of classical sociological theorizing on police, this book grounds such theorising in explicating how British policing has arisen through a schismatic process: why it is in a present mess and what it should be doing in the future. The central themes of this critical text are: An analysis of the congeries of roles and functions that our public police in England and Wales currently undertake and how they got there; An examination of the effect of arbitrary reduction in police services, including a reading of policing politics in an age of austerity; A comparative critique of the British Brand of Policing; The development of a normative manifesto for the future of British Policing. This book will be essential for reading for students, researchers and academics alike in criminology, police studies and public and social policy.
