Picking up the Scent

If you have a dog, you know he likes to sniff things. But did you know that a dog's sense of smell is about 100 times greater than yours?

A dog uses his nose to learn information. When dogs sniff other dogs, they find out about their diet, age, and gender. Dogs also learn about people through their noses.

This amazing ability can help humans in many ways. Dogs can be trained to find missing people. They can check for human health problems, such as diabetes and cancer. They also can locate drugs and weapons.

Researchers say that the part of a dog's brain that handles smells is about 40 times larger than that of a human brain!

Taste and Smell—What's the Connection?

Think back to the last time you had a bad cold. The chances are good that your stuffy nose affected your sense of taste.

That is because our sense of smell and sense of taste are closely connected. Experts say as much as 80 percent of what we taste is related to the way it smells. When your nose is blocked from a cold or the flu, your ability to taste things can be blocked too. The blockage is mostly due to swelling.

The good news is that this uncomfortable condition usually doesn't last long. Your taste comes back as soon as you are breathing easily again.

Name: _____

Directions: now that you have read "Picking up the Scent" and "Taste and Smell—What's the Connection," answer the following questions.

What differences are there between a dog's sense of smell? Use evidence from both texts.

Dogs and humans have different senses of smell. Dogs have a much better sense of smell than humans. This is shown in the passage "Picking up the Scent." It says that a dog's sense of smell is about 100 times greater than a human's. Another difference is that humans have a sense of taste, but dogs do not. The passage "Taste and Smell—What's the Connection?" explains that our sense of taste is mostly related to our sense of smell. When we have a cold, our sense of taste is blocked because our nose is swollen. This shows that our sense of taste and smell are connected. I experienced a similar situation when I had a cold.
