marriages are between cousins or other more distant relatives lending a particular texture to this transnational social field. Based on research in Britain and Pakistan this book provides a rounded portrayal incorporating the emotional motivations for and content of these transnational unions. The book explores the experiences of families and individuals involved including the neglected experiences of migrant husbands and charts the management of the risks of contracting transnational marriages as well as examining the consequences in cases when marriages run into conflict. Equally however the book explores the attractions of marrying back home and the role of transnational marriage in maintaining bonds between people and places. Marriage emerges as a crucial but dynamic and contested element of Pakistani transnational connections. This book is of interest to students and scholars in the fields of migration studies, kinship, the family and South Asian studies as well as social work, family law and immigration.

Interdisciplinarity, Multidisciplinarity and Transdisciplinarity in Humanities Eugene Steele, 2016-02-29. The domination of single subjects in academic programmes and institutions has recently been called into question. Literary studies are currently opening themselves up to the epistemological renewal that other fields can offer. They are increasingly borrowing theoretical tools from other subjects in order to analyse the historical, socio-political and institutional conditions of the production of literary texts to identify the general discursive circumstances in which they emerge and to study the relationship between literature and other media. Similarly, while subjects such as sociology, history and political science have always been closely related, if not literally spinoffs from one another, as in the case of sociology vis-à-vis anthropology, what becomes of their specificities when they borrow from geography to address space-related issues, from psychology to understand social actors' individual motivations or from literary studies to make sense of individual or collective narratives? The present volume accounts for experiments in research that overstep disciplinary boundaries by analysing the new fields and methodologies emerging in the contemporary globalised academic environment which puts a strong premium on synergism and linkages. Moreover, it assesses current theoretical reflections on inter-, multi- and transdisciplinarity as well as research grounded in it and measures their impact on the evolution of scholarship and curriculum in the fields of literature, language and humanities.

Feminism and Global Justice Kerry Carrington, 2014-10-17. In this book Kerry Carrington takes a bold, critical and reflexive approach to understanding the global divisions and inequalities that shape distinctive patterns of gender and crime. The book argues that in order for feminist criminology to enhance its conceptual and political relevance in the twenty-first century, bold new directions in scholarship on gender, crime and global justice are required that also take into account global divisions and inequalities. Issues explored in the book include the forced marriage of child brides, female genital mutilation, feminicide, honour crimes, rape and domestic violence, and the systemic denial of female rights justified by religion, custom or culture. It also explores rising rates of violence recorded for women offenders globally and their increasing participation in terrorism, as well as troubling male-on-male violence in anomic spaces cultivated by globalising forces. Feminism and Global Justice argues that the world needs feminism.

more than ever to address systemic culturally shaped and diverse forms of injustice experienced by females across the globe many of them children It will be essential reading for international and national human rights organisations as well as academics and students engaged in the study of criminology development studies sociology politics and gender studies
