The Explorer's Roadmap to National-Socialism Sarah K. Danielsson, 2016-03-16

Whilst terms such as Lebensraum are commonly associated with National Socialist ideology of the 1930s and 40s ideas of racial living space were in fact generated in the previous decades by an international geographic community of explorers and academics Focusing on one of the most influential figures within this group Sven Hedin this is the first study that systematically connects the geographic community to the intellectual history of the development of National Socialist ideology and genocidal practices The book demonstrates how colonial racial and nationalistic policies were often spearheaded by explorers and geographers such as Hedin In Germany Britain France and Russia their positions as publicly recognized authors and reputable academics made them highly influential with politicians Whilst this influence was to become most visible within Hitler's Germany the debates were not by any means restricted to or even originated in Germany Germany was the home of some of the most prominent geographers but this scientific community had a tradition of international debate and exchange with especially British French and Russian geographic societies and institutions Many issues that were later discussed and championed by National Socialist ideology were aired and debated in this international setting raising important questions about the international character and impact of National Socialism Tracing the intellectual history of the international geographic community and its relationship to National Socialism this study provides an assessment of Hedin's close involvement with the Nazi elite as a culmination of decades of political and scientific work In so doing the book uncovers a long ignored or overlooked important connection between exploration geographers and genocide

Constructing Nationalities in East Central Europe

Pieter M. Judson, Marsha L. Rozenblit, 2005 The hundred years between the revolutions of 1848 and the population transfers of the mid twentieth century saw the nationalization of culturally complex societies in East Central Europe This fact has variously been explained in terms of modernization state building and nation building theories each of which treats the process of nationalization as something inexorable a necessary component of modernity Although more recently social scientists gesture to the contingencies that may shape these larger developments this structural approach makes scholars far less attentive to the hard work ideological political social undertaken by individuals and groups at every level of society who tried themselves to build national societies The essays in this volume make us aware of how complex multi dimensional and often contradictory this nationalization process in East Central Europe actually was The authors document attempts and failures by nationalist politicians organizations activists and regimes from 1848 through 1948 to give East Central Europeans a strong sense of national self identification They remind us that only the use of dictatorial powers in the 20th century could actually transform the fantasy of nationalization into a reality albeit a brutal one

Anthropology and Global History Robert M. Carmack, 2013-10-11 Anthropology and Global History explains the origin and development of human societies and cultures from their earliest beginnings to the present utilizing an anthropological lens but also drawing from sociology economics political science history and ecological and religious studies Carmack reconceptualizes world history from a global perspective by employing the expansive concepts of world systems and civilizations and by paying deeper attention to the role of tribal and native peoples within this history Rather than concentrating on the minute details of specific great events in global history he shifts our focus to the broad social and cultural contexts in which they occurred Carmack traces the emergence of ancient kingdoms and the characteristics of pre modern empires as well as the processes by which the modern world has become integrated and transformed The book addresses Western civilization as well as comparative processes which have unfolded in Asia the Middle East Latin America and sub Saharan Africa Vignettes opening each chapter and case studies integrated throughout the text illustrate the numerous and often extremely complex historical processes which have operated through time and across local regional and global settings

Geopolitical Imagination Mikhail Suslov, 2020-11-02 In his timely book Mikhail Suslov discusses contemporary Russian geopolitical culture and argues that a better knowledge of geopolitical concepts and fantasies is instrumental for understanding Russia's policies Specifically he analyzes such concepts as Eurasianism Holy Russia Russian civilization Russia as a continent Novorossia and others He demonstrates that these concepts reached unprecedented ascendance in the Russian public debates tending to overshadow other political and domestic discussions Suslov argues that the geopolitical imagination structured by these concepts defines the identity of post Soviet Russia while this complex of geopolitical representations engages at the same time with the broader international criticism of the Western liberal world order and aligns itself with the conservative defense of cultural authenticity across the globe Geopolitical ideologies and utopias discussed in the book give the post Soviet political mainstream the intellectual instruments to think about Russia's exclusion imaginary or otherwise from the processes of a global world which is re shaping itself after the end of the Cold War they provide tools to construct the self perception of Russia as a sovereign great power a self sufficient civilization and as one of the poles in a multipolar world and they help to establish the Messianic vision of Russia as the beacon of order tradition and morality in a sea of chaos and corruption
