Dynamics and the Problem of Recognition in Biological Macromolecules Oleg Jardetzky, Jean-François Lefèvre, 2012-12-06 From within complex structures of organisms and cells down to the molecular level biological processes all involve movement Muscular fibers slide on each other to activate the muscle as polymerases do along nucleic acids for replicating and transcribing the genetic material Cells move and organize themselves into organs by recognizing each other through macromolecular surface specific interactions These recognition processes involve the mutual adaptation of structures that rely on their flexibility All sorts of conformational changes occur in proteins involved in through membrane signal transmission showing another aspect of the flexibility of these macromolecules The movement and flexibility are inscribed in the polymeric nature of essential biological macromolecules such as proteins and nucleic acids For instance the well defined structures formed by the long protein chain are held together by weak noncovalent interactions that design a complex potential well in which the protein floats permanently fluctuating between several micro or macroconformations in a wide range of frequencies and amplitudes. The inherent mobility of biomolecular edifices may be crucial to the adaptation of their structures to particular functions. Progress in methods for investigating macromolecular structures and dynamics make this hypothesis not only attractive but more and more testable.

The Power of the Terroir: the Case Study of Prosecco Wine Diego Tomasi, Federica Gaiotti, Gregory V. Jones, 2014-07-08 This book draws on an eight year study carried out in the DOCG Prosecco area of Italy a wine region known worldwide. It is unique in the sense that it is based on one of the most comprehensive investigations into terroir zoning ever performed in Italy. It shows that the morphology of the sites the meso and microclimate the soil the grapevine planting density the trellising system the yield of the vineyard and the vine water status in the summer lead to unique combinations of grape maturity acidity and aroma that ultimately influence the sensory properties of the wines produced. Furthermore the book details numerous technical and agronomic considerations specific to the Glera grape variety for different production strategies including a section on the impact of climate change on cv Glera phenology. The Power of the Terroir: the Case Study of Prosecco Wine represents a valuable resource for anyone involved in studies or research activities in the fields of viticulture climatology agronomic sciences or soil sciences but is also of interest to vine growers professionals in the wine industry and wine enthusiasts in general.
