Radford, 2013-03-09

Decision making is one of the most important activities in both our professional and our private lives today The literature on the subject has grown considerably over the last fifty years and it now covers many different approaches to the subject These approaches range from that of creating a mathematical model of the decision situation under consideration as in operations research and other forms of mathematical decision analysis to those that are based on human and organizational behavior Recently those working in the field have begun to combine approaches to the study of decision situations that arise in organizations in our personal lives and in the communities in which we live This book is an attempt to assist those concerned with decision making to work with this combination of approaches In the past decision problems have been considered according to the conditions under which they arise and to some extent in terms of the approaches available for their resolution Writers on the subject who are mathematically oriented have devised a method of classifying decisions based on the type of mathematics that they suggest be used in the resolution of the problems This approach leads to the division of decision situations into the categories of certainty uncertainty risk and competition Deterministic models available in operations research have then been offered as the means of treating decision situations in the category of certainty Materials Management Rajendra Mishra, 2009 Materials management is an essential business function It is concerned with managing materials one of the four basic resources labour material equipment capital Until recently it was concerned with purchasing raw materials and very few parts from local markets Raw materials were used to make most of the parts for making end products Materials management was regarded as a routine function and was given less importance But over the years firms began to procure more and more parts and subassemblies from local as well as global markets Today over 50% of the revenue of the firms goes for procuring materials parts and subassemblies from outside As a result materials management function has evolved from a clerical buying function into a strategic business function that helps firms to survive and grow It creates competitive edge by creating superior value by delivering quality product or service on time and offering lower cost by cutting its own cost as well as cutting purchased item cost Very few of the available texts offer a comprehensive view of the subject data and examples and cases in the context of Indian industries are limited The contents of the subject are undergoing rapid changes Earlier purchasing was mostly confined to raw materials by manufacturing firms whereas now a large part of it consists of parts subassemblies and assemblies beside raw materials A smaller number of suppliers are preferred now a days Global sourcing is an accepted norm A change in supplier relations from adversarial to partnership is evident Lot sizes and lead times are smaller and there is greater use of information technology The book is designed to provide comprehensive coverage of the field of materials management by including emerging concepts practices tools techniques heuristics and quantitative models Other features of the book include v Important topics like outsourcing purchase strategies and enterprise resource planning v Cases from Indian industries on vendor managed inventory outsourcing and spare parts inventory v Definition of key terms v Questions at the end of each chapter and answers of selected questions The book can serve as a text for undergraduate and postgraduate level courses on materials management in the institutes of management engineering and technology materials industrial engineering operations research and others It can also serve as a reference for managers engineers consultants and others interested in the field
