C. Conceição, Amélia Polónia, 2019-01-29 This book establishes a dialogue between colonial studies and the history of science contributing to a renewed analytical framework grounded on a trans national trans cultural and trans imperial perspective It proposes a historiographical revision based on self organization and cooperation theories as well as the role of traditionally marginalized agents including women in processes that contributed to the building of a First Global Age from 1400 to 1800 The intermediaries between European and local bearers of knowledge played a central role together with cultural translation processes involving local practices of knowledge production and the global circulation of persons commodities information and knowledge Colonized worlds in the First Global Age were central to the making of Europe while Europeans were undoubtedly responsible for the emergence of new balances of power and new cultural grounds Circulation and locality are core concepts of the theoretical frame of this book Discussing the connection between the local and the global in terms of production and circulation of knowledge within the framework of colonialism the book establishes a dialogue between experts on the history of science and specialists on global and colonial studies Technical Abstract Bulletin , Monthly Catalog of United States Government Publications United States.
