

No Service Tax on resale properties

Service Tax is applicable only on property under construction or where a completed building has not received its occupation certificate. As resale properties would essentially have obtained a completion certificate, this tax would not be applicable to resale properties. Service Tax would not be levied on parking lots. Many builders also sell parking space. It has been categorically mentioned in the Budget that any amount paid for getting a parking slot allotted would not be subject to service tax.

Abatement allowed

Budget 2009 brought Abatement Scheme, under Notification No. 1/2006 dated March 1, 2006, which provides that the contractor is entitled to claim abatement to the extent of 6.7 per cent of the value of services rendered by him. Hence, the net effect of the tax could be lesser than the 3.4 per cent, since construction attracts service tax only on 3.3 per cent of the value. In the 2009-11 budget, the Finance Minister rolled back service tax to 3% per cent of the value.

Service Tax on Preferential Location Services

The service tax has been levied on any amount spent by the builder for the development of the complex like building internal roads, paving the garden, etc. Service tax of 10.3 per cent has also been levied on any payment made by a buyer to the builder for getting a preferential location for his house/flat.

1. Any floor rise amount paid for getting an apartment on a higher floor.
2. Any amount paid to get an apartment/house with a specific number.
3. Any amount paid to get an apartment/house facing a specific amenity, say a swimming pool, lake, park, sea, etc.
4. Any amount paid to get an apartment /house facing a specific direction (maybe as per vastu).

Impact of Application of Service Tax on Buyers

The issue of the imposition of Service Tax on construction and sale of residential property was a matter of concern for the real estate and construction industry as well as buyers of residential property. As the service tax was passed on to buyers, the sale price which was already high was further increased by more than three to four per cent. Legally too, it was felt that where a buyer makes construction-linked payment after entering into agreement to sell, the nature of transaction is not a service but that of a sale.
