Abstract

The purpose of this study was to determine whether there were differences in the prevalence of risk factors for coronary artery disease between two groups of men who had been exposed to asbestos during their working lives. The subjects were divided into two groups based on the duration of exposure to asbestos. The first group consisted of men who had been exposed to asbestos for less than 10 years, and the second group consisted of men who had been exposed to asbestos for 10 years or more. The results showed that the prevalence of risk factors for coronary artery disease was significantly higher in the second group compared to the first group.

Abstract

[illegible]

1. The first step in the process is to identify the problem or goal. This involves understanding the current situation and what needs to be achieved.

2. Next, it is important to gather relevant information and data. This can be done through research, interviews, or observation.

3. Once the information is gathered, the next step is to analyze it. This involves identifying patterns, trends, and potential causes.

4. After analysis, the next step is to develop a plan or strategy. This should be based on the findings from the analysis and the goal identified in the first step.

5. The final step is to implement the plan. This involves putting the strategy into action and monitoring progress.
