Investigating the Role of

Emotions, Self-Centered Motives, and Social Norms Corrado Corradi-Dell'Acqua, Leonie Koban, Susanne Leiberg, Patrik Vuilleumier, Ernst Fehr, 2016-09-28 Human behavior and decision making is subject to social and motivational influences such as emotions norms and self other regarding preferences The identification of the neural and psychological mechanisms underlying these factors is a central issue in psychology behavioral economics and social neuroscience with important clinical social and even political implications However despite a continuously growing interest from the scientific community the processes underlying these factors as well as their ontogenetic and phylogenetic development have so far remained elusive In this Research Topic we collect articles that provide challenging insights and stimulate a fruitful controversy on the question of what determines social behavior Indeed over the last decades research has shown that introducing a social context to otherwise abstract tasks has diverse effects on social behavior On the one hand it may induce individuals to act irrationally for instance to refuse money but on the other hand it improves individuals reasoning in that formerly difficult abstract problems can be easily solved These lines of research led to distinct although not necessarily mutually exclusive models for socially driven behavioral changes For instance a popular theoretical framework interprets human behavior as a result of a conflict between cognition and emotion with the cognitive system promoting self interested choices and the emotional system triggered by the social context operating against them Other theories favor social norms and deontic heuristics in biasing human reasoning and encouraging choices that are sometimes in conflict with one's interest Few studies attempted to disentangle between these as well as other models As a consequence although insightful results arise from specific domains tasks a comprehensive theoretical framework is still missing Furthermore studies employing neuroimaging techniques have begun to shed some light on the neural substrates involved in social behavior implicating consistently although not exclusively portions of the limbic system the insular and the prefrontal cortex In this context a challenge for present research lies not only in further mapping the brain structures implicated in social behavior or in describing in detail the functional interaction between these structures but in showing how the implicated networks relate to different theoretical models This is Research Topic hosted by members of the Swiss National Center of Competence in Research Affective Sciences Emotions in Individual Behaviour and Social Processes We collected contributions from the international community which extended the current knowledge about the psychological and neural structures underlying social behavior and decision making In particular we encouraged submissions from investigators arising from different domains psychology behavioral economics affective sciences etc implementing different techniques behavior electrophysiology neuroimaging brain stimulations on different populations neurotypical adults children brain damaged or psychiatric patients etc Animal studies are also included as the data reported are of high comparative value Finally we also welcomed submissions of meta analytical articles mini reviews and perspective papers which offer provocative and insightful interpretations of the recent literature in the field

China and the Internet Song Shi, 2023-12-15 Two oversimplified narratives have long dominated news reports and academic studies of China's Internet one lauding its potentials to boost commerce the other bemoaning state control and measures against the forces of political transformations This bifurcation obscures the complexity of the dynamic forces operating on the Chinese Internet and the diversity of Internet related phenomena China and the Internet analyzes how Chinese activists NGOs and government offices have used the Internet to fight rural malnutrition the digital divide the COVID 19 pandemic and other urgent problems affecting millions of people It presents five theoretically informed case studies of how new media have been used in interventions for development and social change including how activists battled against COVID 19 In addition this book applies a Communication for Development approach to examine the use and impact of China's Internet Although it is widely used internationally in Internet studies Communication for Development has not been rigorously applied in studies of China's Internet This approach offers a new perspective to examine the Internet and related phenomena in Chinese society

China's Influence on Non-Trade Concerns in International Economic Law Paolo Farah, Elena Cima, 2016-10-14 This volume examines the range of Non Trade Concerns NTCs that may conflict with international economic rules and proposes ways to protect them within international law and international economic law Globalization without local concerns can endanger relevant issues such as good governance human rights right to water right to food social economic cultural and environmental rights labor rights access to knowledge public health social welfare consumer interests and animal welfare climate change energy environmental protection and sustainable development product safety food safety and security Focusing on China the book shows the current trends of Chinese law and policy towards international standards The authors argue that China can play a leading role in this context not only has China adopted several reforms and new regulations to address NTCs but it has started to play a very relevant role in international negotiations on NTCs such as climate change energy and culture among others While China is still considered a developing country in particular from the NTCs point of view it promises to be a key actor in international law in general and more specifically in international economic law in this respect This volume assesses taking into consideration its special context China s behavior internally and externally to understand its role and influence in shaping NTCs in the context of international economic law
