studies from urban areas around the world Drum ,1998-02 Urban Geography in South Africa Ruth Massey,Ashley Gunter,2019-08-17 This book embraces South Africa and its place in the Global South providing a succinct theoretical and empirical analysis and discussion of urban issues in the country There have been sporadic calls from the Urban Geography community for the development of an overarching and comprehensive text that explores contemporary processes and practices taking place in urban South Africa and more widely the Global South This is an edited collection of chapters by leading urban theorists and practitioners working on various themes within urban South Africa and serves as a base for scholars and students interested in urban perspectives from countries in the Global South Motherhood in Johannesburg: Mapping the experiences and moral geographies of women and their children in the city Alexandra Parker,Margot Rubin,2017-11-30 South African cities were designed and legislated to enforce spatial marginalisation of Africans coloureds and Indians to peripheral urban settlements The legacy of this intentionally constructed racially segregated space has been reinforced in the post apartheid period by market forces around property prices informal settlement of land and the unintended consequences of state housing policy amongst other factors Patterns of race based spatial marginalisation have also been overlaid by income and gender factors creating hostile conditions for women and poor women in particular Whilst there is a rich mine of literature on spatial exclusions due to race very little study has focused on the gendered spatial experiences of women and more particularly mothers in South African cities Mothers sustain a number of multifaceted roles through and beyond the care of and provision for their children They engage in multiple spheres of work home education community and politics Straddling these various realms mothers are increasingly active users of a diversity of city spaces In some cases the daily routines of mothers are confined within a single neighbourhood but most often mothers enact their many roles on a day to day basis in many different areas of the city The nature of motherhood as both a relationship of care and a role constructed in society and highly unequal urban conditions often impose heavy burdens financial temporal and emotional However the choices mothers make in the city by traversing diverse spaces in order to fulfil their multiple roles and the responsibilities and costs this inflicts is not well understood This Occasional Paper speaks to this gap by exploring the spatial dynamics of mothers in Johannesburg It investigates how women who self identify as mothers navigate their own and their families daily lives in the city in facing a variety of challenges and obstacles Methodologically the research involved studying the everyday practices and experiences of 25 mothers in the city who agreed to in depth interviews and mapping exercises The participants were a diverse group in terms of geographic location income race age and family situation The women narrated their daily lives and the routes they took through various places and spaces that made up their everyday experiences of the city They discussed their decision making around the choice of home work school shopping and recreation and detailed the social and spatial dynamics of their support networks Exploring these moral geographies of motherhood provides valuable insights into a group of people who engage the city extensively in ways that are under recognised In turn understanding the spatial negotiations that typify mothers lives exposes the depth of spatial inequality and poor urban management of our city region in new ways This Occasional Paper is the result of a partnership between the South African Research Chair in Spatial Analysis and City Planning SA CP and the GCRO and specifically involved a collaboration between researchers Yasmeen Dinath Margot Rubin and Alexandra Parker The insights presented here reflect results from a first phase of research that will be deepened through a larger study in 2018

Cosmopolitan Learning for a Global Era Sarah Richardson, 2015-09-16 Ensuring that higher education students are fully prepared for lives as global citizens is a pressing concern in the contemporary world This book draws on insights from cosmopolitan thought to identify how people from different backgrounds can find common ground By applying cosmopolitan insights to higher education practice Sarah Richardson charts how students can be given the opportunity to experience a truly international education which emphasises deep cultural exchange rather than mere transactional contact Written in an engaging and accessible style the author uses empirical evidence to show that simply studying alongside those different to themselves or studying overseas are inadequate in preparing students to lead the diverse societies of tomorrow Instead the book calls for a coherent approach to higher education that properly prepares students to lead global lives Chapters highlight a number of key aspects of higher education practice from curriculum to pedagogy to educator skills to assessment and demonstrate how these can be reconsidered to give students the opportunity to gain cosmopolitan attributes during their higher education Cosmopolitan Learning for a Global Era will be of great interest to researchers scholars and postgraduate students with a particular focus
