Too-Big-to-Fail in Banking Tom Filip Lesche, 2021-06-28 This book provides a comprehensive summary of the latest academic research on the important topic of too big to fail TBTF in banking It explains TBTF from various perspectives including the range of regulatory measures proposed to counter TBTF most notably the globally accepted regulation of global systemically important banks G SIBs and its main tool of capital surcharges The empirical analysis quantifies the shareholder value of the G SIB attribution by using quarterly observations from more than 750 global banks between Q2 2008 and Q3 2015 The main finding is that G SIBs are confronted with a substantial relative valuation discount compared to non G SIBs From the end of 2011 until the end of 2015 a stable discount of 0.6x to 0.8x price to tangible common equity P TCE is statistically highly significant The results suggest that the G SIB designation effect which positively impacts G SIBs share prices because of funding benefits from IGGs is dominated by the regulatory G SIB burden effect which negatively impacts G SIBs share prices because of lower profitability due to capital surcharges and other regulatory requirements placed on G SIBs The findings re open the debate about whether breaking up G SIBs would unlock shareholder value and whether G SIBs are regulated efficiently

admission to graduation and beyond A prospective university student first needs to gain a place the process throwing up important questions about access and equity Once admitted they can benefit from not only the education on offer but a wealth of extra curricular opportunities And research suggests that once they leave the experience of university will enrich their life in numerous ways With clearheaded chapters on research and innovation and thoughtful excursions into funding and governance together with some proposals for change this is a trenchant review of today s university landscape which nonetheless concludes that the current model of higher education is both highly effective and sufficiently adaptive Whilst facing up to difficult issues which must be addressed Professor McKellar derives satisfaction from the evidence of great overall achievement

Investing in wet mills and washed coffee in Ethiopia: Benefits and constraints Tamru, Seneshaw, Minten, Bart, 2018-08-09 Local value addition in developing countries is often aimed at the upgrading of agricultural value chains since it is assumed that doing so will make farmers better off However transmission of the added value through the value chain and constraints to adoption of value adding activities by farmers are not well understood We look at this issue in the case of coffee in Ethiopia the country's most important export product and value addition in the coffee value chain through washing coffee which is done in wet mills Washed coffee is sold internationally with a significant premium compared to natural coffee and we find that this premium is largely transmitted to producers However while wet mills have become more widespread the share of washed coffee in Ethiopia s coffee exports is not increasing over time and even if coffee farmers have access to a wet mill they often do not sell all their coffee cherries to them Relying on a unique primary large scale dataset and a combination of qualitative and quantitative methods we examine the reasons for this puzzle The reasons seemingly are twofold First labor productivity in producing red cherries which wet mills require is lower than for natural coffee reducing incentives for adoption especially for those farmers with higher opportunity costs of labor Second only impatient often smaller farmers sell red cherries as more patient farmers use the storable dried coffee cherries as a rewarding savings instrument given the negative real deposit rates in formal savings institutions
