In Educational Inequality and School Finance Bruce D Baker offers a comprehensive examination of how US public schools receive and spend money Drawing on extensive longitudinal data and numerous studies of states and districts he provides a vivid and dismaying portrait of the stagnation of state investment in public education and the continuing challenges of achieving equity and adequacy in school funding Baker explores school finance the school and classroom resources derived from school funding and how and why those resources matter He provides a critical examination of popular assumptions that undergird the policy discourse around school funding notably that money doesn t matter and that we are spending more and getting less and shows how these misunderstandings contribute to our reluctance to increase investment in education at a time when the demands on our educational system are rising Through an introduction to the concepts of adequacy equity productivity and efficiency Baker shows how these can be used to evaluate policy reforms He argues that we know a great deal about the role and importance of money in schools the mechanisms through which money matters for student outcomes and the trade offs involved and he presents a framework for designing and financing an equitable and adequate public education system with balanced and stable sources of revenue Educational Inequality and School Finance takes an issue all too often relegated to technical experts and makes it accessible for broader public empowerment and engagement Green Grades Graham Bullock,2017-08-25 A comprehensive assessment and analysis of the validity trustworthiness and effectiveness of such environmental ratings as ENERGY STAR LEED and USDA Organic Consumers are confronted with a confusing array of environmental ratings on products that range from refrigerators to shampoos Is the information that these ratings represent trustworthy accurate or even relevant to environmental concerns Information optimists believe that these green grades can play an important role in saving the planet Information pessimists consider them a distraction from pursuing legislative and regulatory actions In this book Graham Bullock offers a comprehensive assessment and analysis of the effectiveness and validity of such environmental ratings as ENERGY STAR USDA Organic the Forest Stewardship Council LEED and the Toxic 100 Air Polluters Index Bullock stakes out a position as an information realist acknowledging both the contributions and the limitations of these initiatives Drawing on interviews case studies and an original dataset of 245 environmental ratings and certifications he examines what he calls the information value chain of green grades organizational associations content methods interfaces and outcomes He explores the relevance of the information to the issues the legitimacy and accountability of sponsoring or cooperating organizations the reliability of methods used to develop the information the prominence and intelligibility of communication to the public and the effects and effectiveness of the information after it emerges from the value chain Bullock s analysis offers a realistic appraisal of the role of information based environmental governance its benefits and shortcomings and its relation to other governance strategies The Parent Trap Nate G. Hilger,2023-04-04 How parents have been set up to fail and why helping them succeed is the key to achieving a fair and prosperous society Few people realize that raising children is the single largest industry in the United States Yet this vital work receives little political support and its primary workers parents labor in isolation If they ask for help they are made to feel inadequate there is no centralized organization to represent their interests and there is virtually nothing spent on research and development to help them achieve their goals It s almost as if parents are set up to fail and the result is lost opportunities that limit children s success and make us all worse off In The Parent Trap Nate Hilger combines cutting edge social science research revealing historical case studies and on the ground investigation to recast parenting as the hidden crucible of inequality Parents are expected not only to care for their children but to help them develop the skills they will need to thrive in today's socioeconomic reality but most parents including even the most caring parents on the planet are not trained in skill development and lack the resources to get help. How do we fix this? The solution Hilger argues is to ask less of parents, not more. America should consider child development a public investment with a monumental payoff. We need a program like Medicare, call it Familycare, to drive this investment. To make it happen, parents need to organize to wield their political power on behalf of children who will always be the largest bloc of disenfranchised people in this country. The Parent Trap exposes the true costs of our society's unrealistic expectations around parenting and lays out a profoundly hopeful blueprint for reform.

Urban Housing in Hill State: Demand and Determinants Utpal Kumar De and Vitsosie Vupru, 2023-01-01. This book presents an analysis of the demand for housing and its determinants in the Dimapur town of Nagaland. Dimapur town is a unique representative of urban India and the most populous town in the hilly Nagaland state of North East India that has been experiencing rapid growth of residential houses and population over the years. The rise in population indigenous and migrants consequently increases the demand for residential properties. But price/rent of residential properties varies across space and time depending upon the characteristics of the houses as well as on the preferences of the potential buyers/tenants and their capabilities. As no concrete study has been made on the nature of demand for housing and its characteristics in this hilly town despite the unprecedented rise in demand for residential property, this study is an attempt to examine the determinants of demand for housing characteristics and factors that influence choice of housing in Dimapur. The study, based on a primary survey across the 23 Wards of Dimapur Municipal Council and using appropriate statistical tools, provides great insights into the housing demand pattern and factors affecting the same and brings out valuable policy implications.
