Upon entering the room of a patient who has just returned from surgery for total laryngectomy and radical neck dissection, a nurse should recognize a need for intervention when finding

- A. a gastrostomy tube that is clamped.
- B. the patient coughing blood-tinged secretions from the tracheostomy.
- C. the patient positioned in a lateral position with the head of the bed flat.
- D. 200 ml of serosanguineous drainage in the patient's portable drainage device. - Correct Answer-C: the patient positioned in a lateral position with the head of the bed flat. After total laryngectomy and radical neck dissection, a patient should be placed in a semi-Fowler's position to decrease edema and limit tension on the suture line.

A 78-year-old does not want to eat lunch and complains that the food that is served does not taste good. Consistent with knowledge about age-related changes to taste, the nurse may find that the client is more willing to eat.

- A) Greasy foods
- B) Sour foods
- C) Sweet foods
- D) Salty foods. - Correct Answer-C = the older adults' taste buds retain their sensitivity to carbohydrates. In addition, carbohydrates tend to be food items that are easy to chew. Older adults lose their sensitivity to sour and salty foods. Older adults may find greasy foods harder to digest and therefore may avoid them; however, preference for greasy foods is not related to changes in taste associated with age.

- C) "It is important to eat six small meals a day."

Nutrition Considerations boxes are spotlighted at appropriate points throughout the text to emphasize the role that nutrition plays in disease and nursing care. Nursing care plans reinforce the nursing process and focus on critical thinking. Cultural Considerations boxes discuss the importance of providing culturally competent care related to various clinical situations. Get Ready for the NCLEX PN Examination sections at the end of chapters include key points, review questions, and case studies that address the various NCLEX Client Needs categories.
