Handbook of Research on Teacher Practices for Diverse Writing Instruction Hodges, Tracey S., 2022-05-20 The art and practice of writing is complex and multidimensional students often apply unique writing styles As such educators must apply focused teaching methods to nurture these unique forms of writing Educators must stay up to date with the practices for diverse writing instruction in order to best engage with a diverse classroom However resources related to writing typically do not focus on the depth and breadth of writing and there is a need for a resource that offers a comprehensive look at diverse writing instruction research The Handbook of Research on Teacher Practices for Diverse Writing Instruction provides a rich discussion of the issues perspectives and methods for writing instruction currently in use with an added lens focusing on diversity and equity It provides unique coverage on the topic of writing instruction for practical implementation within the classroom setting Covering topics such as student motivation curriculum development and content area instruction this major reference work is an essential resource for preservice teachers faculty and administration of K 12 and higher education academic libraries government officials school boards researchers and academicians Computer Vision -- ACCV 2014 Daniel Cremers, Ian Reid, Hideo Saito, Ming-Hsuan Yang, 2015-04-16 The five volume set LNCS 9003 9007 constitutes the thoroughly refereed post conference proceedings of the 12th Asian Conference on Computer Vision ACCV 2014 held in Singapore Singapore in November 2014 The total of 227 contributions presented in these volumes was carefully reviewed and selected from 814 submissions The papers are organized in topical sections on recognition 3D vision low level vision and features segmentation face and gesture tracking stereo physics video and events and poster sessions 1 3 Biometric Recognition Zhenan Sun, Shiguang Shan, Haifeng Sang, Jie Zhou, Yunhong Wang, Weiqi Yuan, 2014-10-29 This book constitutes the refereed proceedings of the 9th Chinese Conference on Biometric Recognition CCBR 2014 held in Shenyang China in November 2014 The 60 revised full papers presented were carefully reviewed and selected from among 90 submissions The papers focus on face fingerprint and palmprint vein biometrics iris and ocular biometrics behavioral biometrics application and system of biometrics multi biometrics and information fusion other biometric recognition and processing Modeling Individual Differences in Perceptual Decision Making Joseph W. Hout, Cheng-Ta Yang, James T. Townsend, 2017-01-18 To deal with the abundant amount of information in the environment in order to achieve our goals human beings adopt a strategy to accumulate some information and filter out other information to ultimately make decisions Since the development of cognitive science in the 1960s researchers have been interested in understanding how human beings process and accumulate information for decision making Researchers have conducted extensive behavioral studies and applied a wide range of modeling tools to study human behavior in simple detection tasks and two choice decision tasks e g discrimination classification In general researchers often assume that the manner in which information is processed for decision making is invariant across individuals given a particular experimental context Independent variables including speed accuracy instructions stimulus properties i.e intensity and characteristics of the participants i.e aging cognitive ability are assumed to affect the parameters in a model i.e speed of information accumulation response bias but not the way that participants process information e.g the order of information processing Given these assumptions much modeling has been accomplished based on the grouped data rather than the individual data However a growing number of studies have demonstrated that there were individual differences in the perceptual decision process In the same task context different groups of the participants may process information in different manners The capacity and architecture of the decision mechanism were found to vary across individuals implying that humans decision strategies can vary depending on the context to maximize their performance In this special issue we focused on a particular subset of cognitive models particularly accumulator models multinomial processing trees and systems factorial technology SFT as applied to perceptual decision making The motivation for the focus on perceptual decision making is threefold Empirical studies of perception have grown out of a history of making a large number of observations for each individual so as to achieve precise estimates of each individual's performance This type of data rather than a small number of observations per individual is most amenable to achieving precision in individual level and group level cognitive modeling Second the interaction between the acquisition of perceptual information and the decisions based on that information to the extent that those processes are distinguishable offers rich data for scientific exploration Finally there is an increasing interest in the practical application of individual variation in perceptual ability whether to inform perceptual training and expertise or to guide personnel decisions Although these practical applications are beyond the scope of this issue we hope that the research presented herein may serve as the foundation for future endeavors in that domain
