

Student Exploration: Photosynthesis Lab

Vocabulary: carbon dioxide, chlorophyll, glucose, limiting factor, nanometer, photosynthesis, wavelength

Prior Knowledge Questions (Do these BEFORE using the Gizmo.)

- To survive, what gas do we need to breathe in?

In order to survive, we need to breathe in oxygen (O<sub>2</sub>).

- Where is this gas produced?

At least half of the Earth's oxygen is produced from the ocean, from bacteria that photosynthesize. However, it is also produced in a process called photosynthesis where plants convert CO<sub>2</sub> into oxygen.

Gizmo Warm-up

During photosynthesis, plants use the energy of light to produce glucose (C<sub>6</sub>H<sub>12</sub>O<sub>6</sub>) from carbon dioxide (CO<sub>2</sub>) and water (H<sub>2</sub>O). Glucose is a simple sugar that plants use for energy and as a building block for larger molecules.

A by-product of photosynthesis is oxygen. Plants use some of the oxygen they produce, but most of it is released. In the Photosynthesis Lab Gizmo, you can monitor the rate of photosynthesis by measuring oxygen production.

1. Observe the left pane closely. What do you think the bubbles are?

In my opinion, the bubbles are the oxygen that the plant is giving off.

2. Select the BAR CHART tab. On the graph, notice the Oxygen production bar. Move the Light intensity slider back and forth. How does light intensity affect oxygen production?

As the light intensity increases, the volume of oxygen production rises. At sufficiently high levels of light intensity, the rate of oxygen evolution remains constant. When the light intensity reaches 69%, the oxygen production remains the same. However, the oxygen production begins to slightly decrease when the light intensity reaches 91%.

3. Experiment with the vertical Temperature slider (upper left) and the CO<sub>2</sub> level slider.

- A. How does temperature affect oxygen production?

The higher the temperature, then typically the greater the rate of photosynthesis. Photosynthesis is a chemical reaction and the rate of most chemical reactions increase with temperature. However, for photosynthesis at temperatures above 25 °C the rate slows down.

- B. How does CO<sub>2</sub> level affect oxygen production?
