Fact-Finding without Facts Nancy A. Combs, 2010-07-30 Fact Finding Without Facts explores international criminal fact finding empirically conceptually and normatively After reviewing thousands of pages of transcripts from various international criminal tribunals the author reveals that international criminal trials are beset by numerous and severe fact finding impediments that substantially impair the tribunals ability to determine who did what to whom These fact finding impediments have heretofore received virtually no publicity let alone scholarly treatment and they are deeply troubling not only because they raise grave concerns about the accuracy of the judgments currently being issued but because they can be expected to similarly impair the next generation of international trials that will be held at the International Criminal Court After setting forth her empirical findings the author considers their conceptual and normative implications The author concludes that international criminal tribunals purport a fact finding competence that they do not possess and as a consequence base their judgments on a less precise more amorphous method of fact finding than they publicly acknowledge

Fact-Finding in International

Arbitration Julian Bickmann,2022-12-09 Establishing a factual basis on which to apply the law can be an extraordinarily challenging process and perhaps more so in international arbitration than in any other proceedings due to the very different notions of fact finding that prevail among jurisdictions This important book assesses for the first time the contours of an emerging transnational law of fact finding that promises to greatly enhance the efficiency and reliability of this crucial arbitral procedure In his analysis focusing on bases that reflect current but fluid transnational practice the author assembles
