The Vampire in Literature: A Comparison of Bram Stoker's Dracula and Anne Rice's Interview with the Vampire Janina Nußbaumer, 2014-02-01 The figure of the vampire has been around for centuries and has lost none of its fascination Although the portrayal of the vampire in literature today has not much in common with its historical origins the vampire belief is based on true events Bram Stoker's novel Dracula laid the foundation for the success story of the vampire He created something sinister a monster in the shape of a gentleman The evil of the Victorian society was personified in the form of the revenant Boundaries between good and evil human and non human death and life are blurred and unrecognizable in his book In contrast Anne Rice creates a world where humans and vampires live next to each other Her vampires resemble human beings not only in terms of their bodies but also in terms of their minds There is no horror detectable but amazement and identification with the revenants by the reader In this context the differentiation of the constructed images of the vampires in the two novels Dracula by Bram Stoker and Interview with the Vampire by Anne Rice is analyzed Thereby the study investigates those elements that have been adopted those ones that have developed over the time and the consequences that go along with the manner of construction Tibet Brian St. Claire-King,2004 Rousseau and romanticism Irving Babbitt,1919 Shifter Legacies Series Mark E. and the close of the nineteenth century The book argues that the American Gothic foregrounds the overpowering affect and distressing significations of the voices of the dead dying abjected marginalised or nonhuman in order to undertake a sustained interrogation of what it means to be and speak as an American in this period The American Gothic imagines new forms of relation between speaking subjects positing more inclusive and expansive kinds of community while also emphasising the ethical demands attending our encounters with Gothic voices The Gothic suggests that how we choose to hear and respond to these voices says much about our relationship with the world around us its inhabitants dead or otherwise and the limits of our own subjectivity and empathy
