

Summer vs Winter

Summer Vs Winter My two favorite seasons are exactly six months apart. Of the four seasons, winter and summer are the most excellent; they incorporate the best of both worlds. Some people like winter because of the snow and Christmas, but my favorite is summer because of the warm weather. These two seasons have some bizarre similarities; for example, summer and winter both occur when the Earth is tilted into the Sun. When it is summer in the Northern Hemisphere, it is winter in the Southern Hemisphere, and vice versa.

Although winter is a very hectic and stressful season, it's great to get together with family and friends and enjoy the spirit of the season. In the summer, I can also visit those same family and friends and enjoy activities appropriate to the weather. Each season blesses us with a major break from school; this break is incredibly important because without that relief, students can easily get burnt out of school and become too tired to do decent work and get good grades.

Both breaks allow me to unwind and take it easy from the brutal punishments teachers hand down throughout each school year. The time off from school serves as a time for me to take up new opportunities as well. Winter and summer have particular sports for each season, utilizing the weather in each to make the most of recreation. Every six months is a blast because of these amazing seasons. On the contrary, the first big difference between summer and winter is the most obvious one: the weather.

In the summer time, it is usually warm and sunny and pleasurable to be outside. I can go swimming, go to the beach, sun bathe, go boating, and all of those fun summer activities everyone looks forward to. In the wintertime, most people think of coldness, but I can still find opportunities to have excitement. The activities are very different; in the winter, I can go ice skating, sledding, and skiing. In the snowy weather I hear a lot about car accidents due to the messy conditions, but in the summer there are far fewer instances.

While summer's warmth is popular with everyone, many people hate winter because it is so chilly and miserable. The bitter temperatures and weather can greatly affect people's moods and emotional habits; this is called seasonal depression. It's the time of year when people are reporting feeling depressed because of the dark, arctic winter months. These feelings can even make winter break dreadful. Summer break, on the hand isn't affected by the winter blizzards and is three times as long.

I can enjoy an enormous amount of free time and do, within reason whatever I want. In the wintertime everyone is flustered and chaotic over Christmas, shopping, and traveling to see relatives. Summer, on the other hand, is a very lazy, relaxed, and enjoyable season. Because of the inconvenience of bad weather, there sometimes are family conflicts when scheduling the holidays. Both seasons clearly have their differences b

Pseudepigraphy and Ethical Argument in the Pastoral Epistles Lewis R. Donelson, 2015-09-29 By employing analyses of the literary structure of ancient pseudepigraphical letters and of the logical structure of ethical argument this study discovers in the Pastoral Epistles a consistent theological ethic that has cosmological and cultic grounding First an investigation of Greco Roman religious pseudepigraphical letters identifies those literary patterns that determine the form of argumentation in the Pastoral Epistles Second an investigation of the structure of ethical argument produces categories for organizing and analyzing the apparently disorganized arguments in these letters Finally this study concludes that the author of the Pastoral Epistles builds a coherent theological ethic by falsifying Pauline history and by grounding his ethical warrants in church officers

Mysticism and Logic and Other Essays Bertrand Russell, 2015-10-31

Metaphysics or the attempt to conceive the world as a whole by means of thought has been developed from the first by the union and conflict of two very different human impulses the one urging men towards mysticism the other urging them towards science Some men have achieved greatness through one of these impulses alone others through the other alone in Hume for example the scientific impulse reigns quite unchecked while in Blake a strong hostility to science co exists with profound mystic insight But the greatest men who have been philosophers have felt the need both of science and of mysticism the attempt to harmonise the two was what made their life and what always must for all its arduous uncertainty make philosophy to some minds a greater thing than either science or religion Before attempting an explicit characterisation of the scientific and the mystical impulses I will illustrate them by examples from two philosophers whose greatness lies in the very intimate blending which they achieved The two philosophers I mean are Heraclitus and Plato Heraclitus as every one knows was a believer in universal flux time builds and destroys all things From the few fragments that remain it is not easy to discover how he arrived at his opinions but there are some sayings that strongly suggest scientific observation as the source
