Bigfield Labs has a bottleneck station that has one machine working on a NON-batched process. It takes this machine on average 5.3 hours to process a job. That is, the capacity of Bigfield Labs is 4.53 jobs per day. Bigfield decides to buy a second (exactly the same) machine at this station; however this station remains as the bottleneck process. A job arriving at this station will be processed by only one of the two identical parallel machines and can be processed by any one of them that is available. What is Bigfield's capacity with two identical parallel machines that can perform two jobs at the same time at this bottleneck station? (Hint: buying a second machine is doubling the capacity.) - ANSWERS 9.06

Bigfield Labs' first process is performed at a bottleneck station that has one machine working on a NON-batched process. It takes this machine on average 5.3 hours to process a job. That is, the capacity of Bigfield Labs is 4.53 jobs per day. Starting in the next month, the expected (average) daily demand is 16 jobs per day. Obviously Bigfield does not have enough capacity. Bigfield needs to buy more (exactly the same) machines at this first station. What is the minimum number of machines Bigfield needs to have at this station in order for this station to have capacity $>$ average demand? (Note that the capacity needs to be $>$ average demand, not $=$. Think about why.) - ANSWERS 4

Bigfield Labs' first process is performed at a bottleneck station that has six identical machines working on a NON-batched process. A job can be taken by any one of the unoccupied machines and needs to be processed by only one of the machines at this station. It takes a machine on average 5.3 hours to process
