

Solutions to Chapter 8

8.1. The IP header checksum only verifies the integrity of IP header. Discuss the pros and cons of doing the checksum on the header part versus on the entire packet.

Solution:

Error checking in the header is more important because the packet is routed according to the header information. In addition, the delivery of the data at the destination to the higher layers also requires the header information. Thus error checking of the header protects against misdelivery of the information. Restricting the error checking to the header also simplifies the implementation in the nodes, requires less checksum bits, and prevents unnecessary packet discard. Some higher layers can tolerate some data errors, and higher layers also have the option of performing retransmission.

8.2. Identify the address class of the following IP addresses: 200.58.20.165; 128.167.23.20; 16.196.128.50; 50.156.10.10; 250.10.24.96.

Solution:

An IP address has a fixed length of 32 bits, where the most significant bits identify the particular class. Therefore, to identify the address class we need to convert the dotted-decimal notation back into its binary counterpart, and compare the binary notation to the class prefixes shown in Figure 8.5 in the text. (Recall that the dotted-decimal notation was devised to communicate addresses more readily to other people. In this notation, the 32 bits are divided into four groups of 8 bits – separated by periods – and then converted to their decimal counterpart.) The first few bits (shown in red) of the address can be used to determine the class.
