The Grammar of the Machine Edward Stevens, 1995-01-01 During the late eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries the American economy moved toward a manufacturing base and mass production creating a demand for a literacy that encompassed not only the traditional alphabetic form of expression but also scientific and mathematical notation and spatial and graphic representation How did the world of learning respond to this demand What kinds of educational institutions teachers textbooks and patterns of instruction emerged Edward Stevens Jr describes the important technological changes that took place in antebellum America and the challenges they posed for education Investigating the instruction curricula and textbooks used in the common schools in the mechanics institutes and specifically at the Troy Female Seminary and the Rensselaer School in upstate New York he demonstrates how advocates of technical literacy attempted to teach new skills Stevens shows that the tensions between the liberal and the vocational between a culture of print and a nonverbal culture of experience persisted in technical education through the first half of the nineteenth century but were resolved temporarily by a common moral vision

The Artist and Political Vision Benjamin R. Barber, Michael J. Gargas McGrath, Art and politics are often regarded as denizens of different realms but few artists have been comfortable with the notion of a purely aesthetic definition of art The artist has a public and thus political vision of the world interpreted by his art no less than the statesman and the legislator have a creative vision of the world they wish to make The sixteen original essays in this volume bear eloquent witness to this interpenetration of art and politics Each confronts the intersection of the aesthetic and the social each is concerned with the interface of poetic vision and political vision of reflection and action They take art in the broadest sense ranging over poets dramatists novelists essayists and filmmakers Their focus is on art and its political dilemmas not simply on the artist They consider the issues raised for politics and culture by alienation violence modernization technology democracy progress and revolution And they debate the capacity of art to stimulate social change and incite revolution the temptations of social control of culture and of political censorship the uncertain relationship between art and history the impact of economic structure on artistic creation and of economic class on artistic product the common ground between art and legislation and between creativity and control
