Frisby, William T. O'Donohue, 2018-07-25 The first volume of its kind this provocative book evaluates the construct of cultural competence from multiple perspectives. At the intersection of diverse disciplines and domains contributors argue for greater clarity in understanding the cultural competence construct a deeper level of analysis as to its multifaceted components and call for concrete practical objectives and science based means of measurement. Serious nuanced discussion addresses challenges strengths and limitations of current cultural competence practice in terms of sociocultural concepts e.g. race ethnicity and practical concepts e.g. sensitivity in the therapeutic relationship treatment efficacy. In addition contributors identify future directions for research training and practice with the potential to spur the further evolution of this clinically important construct. This timely book Critiques the cultural competence construct and its evaluation as it is currently disseminated within applied psychology. Compares and contrasts how cultural competence is defined within clinical school and counseling psychology. Analyzes difficulties and challenges in understanding the cultural competence construct as evaluated through the lens of closely related fields outside of applied psychology. Spotlights complexities in cultural competence issues pertaining to specific populations. Sets out implications for education and training offering a detailed outline for an ideal college course in cultural competence. With this level of reasoning and rigor Cultural Competence in Applied Psychology is sure to stimulate long overdue dialogue and debate among professionals across a wide variety of fields such as clinical psychology social work child and social psychology psychotherapy school psychology and counseling. Legal Insanity: Explorations in Psychiatry, Law, and Ethics Gerben Meynen, 2016-11-08 This book examines core issues related to legal insanity integrating perspectives from psychiatry law and ethics. Various criteria for insanity are analyzed and recommendations for forensic psychiatric and legal practice are offered. Many legal systems have an insanity defense in one form or another. Still it remains unclear exactly when and why mental disorders affect a person's moral or criminal responsibility. Questions addressed in this book include Why should insanity be a component of our legal system? What should be the criteria for an insanity defense? What would be the reasons for abolishing it? Who should bear the burden of proof Furthermore the book discusses the impact neurosciences may have on psychiatric and psychological evaluations of defendants as well as on legal decisions about insanity

Online and Offline Modulators of Motor Learning

Shahabeddin Vahdat,Ovidiu Lungu,Bradley King,Geneviève Albouy,Julien Doyon,2017-05-25 Both the acquisition of new and the modification of previously acquired motor skills are necessary to achieve optimal levels of motor performance in everyday functioning as well as to attain expert performance levels that are evident in sports and arts A multitude of factors have been shown to influence the various stages of the learning process from the acquisition i e motor memory encoding to the consolidation and subsequent retention of a skill These factors or modulators can affect learning through online processes taking place during practice of a new motor skill or through offline processes occurring in the absence of task performance i e after training sessions Although much of the recent research from various disciplines has placed an increased emphasis on identifying factors that can influence the motor learning process we lack an integrated understanding of online and offline determinants of motor skill behaviours Potential motor learning modulators include but are certainly not limited to stress anxiety attention executive functioning social interaction stimulus response mapping training schedule regimen learning environment vigilance consciousness states including sleep wakefulness or meditation brain stimulation interference as well as resting state brain connectivity Pathological and non pathological i e development or aging changes in the brain can also be conceptualized as potential modulators The aim of this Research Topic is to bridge research from the cognitive sensory motor and psychological domains using various behavioural paradigms and neuroimaging techniques in order to provide a comprehensive view of the online and offline modulators of motor learning and how they interact to influence motor performance Critically the overarching goal is to gain a better understanding of how motor behaviour can be optimized We believe that merging research from diverse neuroscientific communities would contribute to fulfilling this goal and potentially highlight possible shared neurophysiological mechanisms influencing motor learning

Clinical Care and Rehabilitation in Head and Neck Cancer Philip C. Doyle, 2019-03-21 Malignancies involving structures of the head and neck frequently impact the most fundamental aspects of human existence namely those functions related to voice and speech production eating and swallowing Abnormalities in voice production and in some instances its complete loss are common following treatment for laryngeal voice box cancer. Similarly speech eating and swallowing may be dramatically disrupted in those where oral structures e.g. the tongue jaw hard palate pharynx etc are surgically ablated to eliminate the cancer. Consequently the range and degree of deficits that may be experienced secondary to the treatment of head and neck cancer HNCa are often substantial. This need is further reinforced by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention who have estimated that the number of individuals who will be newly diagnosed with HNCa will now double every 10 years. This estimate becomes even more critical given that an increasing number of those who are newly diagnosed will be younger and will experience the possibility of long term survival post treatment. Contemporary rehabilitation efforts for those treated for HNCa increasingly demand that clinicians actively consider and address multiple issues. Beyond the obvious concerns specific to any type of cancer i.e. the desire for curative treatment clinical efforts that address physical psychological communicative and social consequences secondary to HNCa treatment are essential components of all effective rehabilitation programs. Comprehensive HNCa rehabilitation ultimately seeks to restore multiple areas of functioning in the context of the disabling effects of treatment. In this regard rehabilitation often focuses on restoration of function while reducing the impact of residual treatment related deficits on the individual's overall functioning well being quality of life QOL and ultimately optimize survivorship. Regardless of the treatment method(s) pursued for HNCa e.g. surgery radiotherapy chemoradiation or combined methods additional problems beyond those associated with voice speech eating and swallowing frequently exist. For example post treatment changes in areas such as breathing maintaining nutrition limitations in physical capacity because surgical reconstruction such as deficits in shoulder functioning concerns specific to cosmetic alterations and associated disfigurement and deficits in body image are common. Those treated for HNCa also may experience significant pain depression stigma and subsequent social isolation. Concerns of this type have led clinicians and researchers to describe HNCa as the most emotionally traumatic form of cancer. It is therefore essential that clinicians charged with the care and rehabilitation of those treated for HNCa actively seek to identify acknowledge and systematically address a range of physical psychological social and communication problems. Efforts that systematically consider this range of post treatment sequelae are seen as critical to any effort directed toward enhanced rehabilitation outcomes. Actively and purposefully addressing post treatment challenges may increase the likelihood of both short and long term rehabilitation success in this challenging clinical population. Current information suggests that successful clinical outcomes for those with HNCa are more likely to be realized when highly structured yet flexible interdisciplinary programs of care are pursued. Yet contemporary educational resources that focus not only on management of voice speech eating and swallowing disorders but also address issues such as shoulder dysfunction due to neck dissection the significant potential for cosmetic alterations can offer a much broader perspective on rehabilitation. Contemporary surgical treatment frequently involves reconstruction with extensive procedures that require donor sites that include both soft tissue from a variety of locations e.g. forearm thigh etc as well as bone e g the scapula Collectively resources that address these issues and many other concerns and the resultant social implications of HNCa and its treatment can serve to establish a comprehensive framework for clinical care Consequently providing a highly specialized and comprehensive educational resource specific to HNCa rehabilitation is currently needed The proposed edited book is designed to address this void in a single authoritative resource that is also accessible to the clinical readership Integral to this proposed book is information that guides clinical approaches to HNCa rehabilitation in addition to offering emphasis on the direct impact of changes in voice speech and swallowing and the impact of such losses on outcomes Finally while several other published sources currently exist see attached list the emphasis of these books is directed either toward the identification and diagnosis of malignant disease clinical and surgical pathology associated efforts directed toward biomedical aspects of cancer and its treatment or those with a focus on a single clinical problem or approach to rehabilitation Therefore the content of the proposed multi chapter text centers on delivering a systematically structured comprehensive and clinically oriented presentation on a range of topics that will provide readers at a variety of levels with a strong well integrated and empirically driven foundation to optimize the clinical care of those with HNCa The primary audience for this textbook is undergraduate and graduate level students in Speech Language Pathology as well as practitioners especially hospital based practitioners in Speech Language Pathology other key audiences include junior and senior level otolaryngology residents and fellows translational researchers in head and neck cancer related medical specialists e g radiation oncology oncology nurses and potentially other rehabilitation professionals such as occupational therapists counseling psychologists social workers and rehabilitation counselors
