The Lived Experience of Climate Change Dina Abbott, Gordon Wilson, 2015-04-22 This book explores the idea that daily lived experiences of climate change are a crucial missing link in our knowledge that contrasts with scientific understandings of this global problem It argues that both kinds of knowledge are limiting the sciences by their disciplines and lived experiences by the boundaries of everyday lives Therefore each group needs to engage the other in order to enrich and expand understanding of climate change and what to do about it Complemented by a rich collection of examples and case studies this book proposes a novel way of generating and analysing knowledge about climate change and how it may be used The reader is introduced to new insights where the book Provides a framework that explains the variety of simultaneous co existing and often contradictory perspectives on climate change Reclaims everyday experiential knowledge as crucial for meeting global challenges such as climate change Overcomes the science citizen dichotomy and leads to new ways of examining public engagement with science Scientists are also human beings with lived experiences that filter their scientific findings into knowledge and actions Develops a public action theory of knowledge as a tool for exploring how decisions on climate policy and intervention are reached and enacted While scientists physical and social seek to explain climate change and its impacts millions of people throughout the world experience it personally in their daily lives The experience might be bad as during extreme weather engender hostility when governments attempt mitigation and sometimes it is benign This book seeks to understand the complex often contradictory knowledge dynamics that inform the climate change debate and is written clearly for a broad audience including lecturers students practitioners and activists indeed anyone who wishes to gain further insight into this far reaching issue

Climate Hazard Crises in Asian Societies and Environments Troy Sternberg, 2017-01-20 Climate hazards are the world s most widespread deadliest and costliest natural disasters Knowledge of climate hazard dynamics is critical since the impacts of climate change population growth development projects and migration affect both the impact and severity of disasters Current global events highlight how hazards can lead to significant financial losses increased mortality rates and political instability This book examines climate hazard crises in contemporary Asia identifying how hazards from the Middle East through South and Central Asia and China have the power to reshape our globalised world In an era of changing climates knowledge of hazard dynamics is essential to mitigating disasters and strengthening livelihoods and societies across Asia By integrating human exposure to climate factors and disaster episodes the book explores the environmental forces that drive disasters and their social implications Focusing on a range of Asian countries landscapes and themes the chapters address several scales province national regional different hazards drought flood temperature storms dust environments desert temperate mountain coastal and issues vulnerability development management politics to present a diverse comprehensive evaluation of climate hazards in Asia This book offers an understanding of the challenges climate hazards present their critical nature and the effort needed to mitigate climate hazards in 21st century Asia Climate Hazard Crises in Asian Societies and Environments is vital reading for those interested and engaged in Asia s development and well being today and will be of interest to those working in Geography Development Studies Environmental Sciences Sociology and Political Science

Handbook of Materials for String Musical Instruments Voichita Bucur,2016-08-29 This book addresses core questions about the role of materials in general and of wood in particular in the construction of string instruments used in the modern symphony orchestra violins violas cellos and basses Further attention is given to materials for classical guitars harps harpsichords and pianos While some of the approaches discussed are traditional most of them depend upon new scientific approaches to the study of the structure of materials such as for example wood cell structure which is visible only using modern high resolution microscopic techniques Many examples of modern and classical instruments are examined together with the relevance of classical techniques for the treatment of wood Composite materials especially designed for soundboards could be a good substitute for some traditional wood species The body and soundboard of the instrument are of major importance for their acoustical properties but the study also examines traditional and new wood species used for items such as bows the instrument neck string pegs etc Wood species properties for musical instruments and growth origins of woods used by great makers such as Antonio Stradivari are examined and compared with more recently grown woods available to current makers The role of varnish in the appearance and acoustics of the final instrument is also discussed since it has often been proposed as a secret ingredient used by great makers Aspects related to strings are commented As well as discussing these subjects with many illustrations from classical and contemporary instruments the book gives attention to conservation and restoration of old instruments and the physical results of these techniques There is also discussion of the current value of old instruments both for modern performances and as works of art having great monetary value The book will be of interest and value to researchers advanced students music historians and contemporary string instrument makers Musicians in general particularly those playing string instruments will also find its revelations fascinating It will also attract the attention of those using wood for a variety of other purposes for its use in musical instruments uncovers many of its fundamental features

What We Think About When We Try Not To Think About Global Warming Per Espen Stoknes, 2015 Today about 98 percent of scientists affirm that climate change is human made and about 2 percent still question it Despite that overwhelming majority though about half the population of rich countries like ours choose to believe the 2 percent And paradoxically this large camp of deniers grows even larger as more and more alarming proof of climate change has cropped up over the last decades This disconnect has both climate scientists and activists scratching their heads growing anxious and responding usually by repeating more facts to win the argument But the more climate facts pile up the greater the resistance to them grows and the harder it becomes to enact measures to reduce greenhouse gas emissions and prepare communities for the inevitable change ahead Is humanity up to the task It is a catch 22 that starts says psychologist and climate expert Per Espen Stoknes from an inadequate understanding of the way most humans think act and live in the world around them With dozens of examples he shows how to retell the story of climate change and apply communication strategies more fit for the task Publisher s description Integration of AI and OR Techniques in Constraint Programming Laurent
