

A Terrible Accident

It was a lazy weekend as usual with nothing much to do. There was nothing worth watching on television either. All the good programmes are usually aired during the week when loads of homework and household chores keep me busy. Mom was busy in the kitchen preparing lunch and dad had gone to visit a sick friend.

I decided to go for a walk to New Road. The sun shone brightly overhead but there was a noticeable chill in the air. November is a favourite month for me. I had just reached Lainchour when I noticed a huge crowd near the campus. There seemed to be chaos everywhere. More and more people were adding to the crowd. Policemen were also seen shouting instructions into their walkie-talkies.

I managed to get into the crowd. It was the most horrible sight that I had ever witnessed in my life. A car had been destroyed completely and it was lying just outside the campus gate. A motorbike lay to one side – damaged and covered with blood. The rider of the bike was badly injured but he survived. He was rushed away to a nearby hospital in an ambulance.

It was then that I saw the bodies. A young woman in her twenties lay dead on the road. She must have been beautiful once with her long, blonde hair. Her car hit the campus wall while she was trying to avoid an accident with a fast bike. That moment cost her. She crashed into the solid campus walls and in a flash of a second, her life was extinguished like a flame.

I watched as people helped the police to lift her body. I got a further shock when I saw a little baby boy beneath her body. He was her son. The people picked him up too. His face and right side of his body were injured badly. I turned away in horror and ran from the scene.

What started off as a pleasant stroll on a lovely Saturday morning, turned out to be a terrible experience. I still remember the scene clearly. I guess it will take me a long time to forget the sight of mother and child lying in
