Nájera, 2024-09-06 In Learning to Lead Jennifer R N jera explores the intersections of education and activism among undocumented students at the University of California Riverside Taking an expansive view of education N jera shows how students experiences in college both in and out of the classroom can affect their activism and advocacy work Students learn from their families communities peers and student and political organizations In these different spaces they learn how to navigate community and college life as undocumented people. Students are able to engage campus organizations where they can cultivate their leadership skills and importantly learn that they are not alone. These students embody and mobilize their education through both large and small political actions such as protests, workshops for financial aid applications, and Know Your Rights events. As students create community with each other, they come to understand that their individual experiences of illegality are part of a larger structure of legal violence. This type of education empowers students to make their way to and through college, change their communities, and ultimately assert their humanity.

Competency-based Language Teaching in Higher Education María Luisa Pérez Cañado, 2012-11-28. Spanning the divide between the theory and praxis of competency-based teaching in tertiary language education, this volume contains invaluable practical guidance for the post-secondary sector on how to approach teaching and assess competencies in Bologna-adapted systems of study. It presents the latest results of prominent European research projects, programs of pedagogical innovation, and thematically linked academic networks. Responding to a profound need for a volume addressing the practical aspects of the newly designed language degrees now being rolled out across Europe, this essential contribution pools the insights of a prestigious set of scholars, practitioners, and policy makers from diverse parts of Europe and the US. It will inform crucial decisions about instituting and evaluating competencies in a new generation of language studies programmes. Nurturing Narratives Lauren Franke, Christine Durbin, 2011. Accompanying CD-ROM contains assessment tools and worksheets.

Take and Read Paul G. Doerksen, 2016-09-22. Take and Read is a collection of essays first presented as oral theological reflections on books written to stimulate conversations among diverse groups of readers which included farmers, physicians, teachers, poets, novelists, scientists, people involved in business, finance, relief work, and many other walks of life ranging in age from twenty-something to eighty. These reflections introduce and offer samples of theological readings of a variety of books. The result is a collection of essays addressing a wide range of topics from food security to violence, from dementia to indigenous issues. Perhaps this book is best described as an invitation to joining a conversation about books and more importantly about God. Comprehension First Claudia E. Cornett, 2017-06-30. This book is about designing instruction that makes comprehension the priority in reading and in content-area study. The comprehension model described responds to calls from literacy experts and professional organizations for inquiry-based instruction that prepares readers to be active meaning makers who are adept at both critical and creative thinking. Comprehension First introduces a before-during-after Comprehension Problem Solving (CPS) process that helps readers ask key questions so they arrive at a substantial comprehension product. Big ideas based on themes and conclusions drawn from literary works and expository texts. The book further describes how to orchestrate research-based best practices to build lessons and units around big ideas and important questions. In this age of multiple literacies, all of us must learn to be more nimble users of Literacy 2.0 communication tools. Mastering problem solving is at the core of this challenge. Comprehension First embraces this challenge by inviting present and future teachers to examine WHY and HOW these tools can be used more purposefully to achieve the pre eminent literacy goal of deep comprehension Spirituality, Social Justice and Language Learning David I. Smith,Terry

Osborn,2007-02-01 This book sets out to explore the intersections between matters not frequently yoked in academic discussions spirituality social justice and the learning of world languages The contributing authors contend not only that these intersections exist but that they are the site of issues and realities that require the attention of language educators and point to avenues of growth for the language teaching profession The essays included seek to indicate the possibilities of a neglected area of inquiry not only in terms of theory but also in terms of the practices of language education Given this aim of opening up fresh questions the book is arranged so as to show the relevance of the nexus of spirituality and social justice to teacher education chapters 3 and 4 language classroom practices chapters 5 and 6 and the theoretical sources that inform scholarly discussion of language education chapters 7 and 8 The opening chapters place these explorations in a larger context by showing how they fit into existing social contexts and academic discussions Mapping Comprehensive Units
